President Roosevelt, in another "opening speech of the 1936 campaign," addressing 20,000 young Democrats of Baltimore and the nation on the radio, suggested that youth should begin work at 18 and "old age" stop work at 65.

Youth should have its first eighteen years, at least, for exercise, study, happiness. Sixty-five might be a good age to stop dull routine work for wages, but no man would want to stop real work until death, except that six months to look around this side of the grave might be acceptable.

Goethe finished the second part of Faust when he was past seventy-two; and one of the ablest French writers, starting a new prose style, wrote nothing until at eighty-six he wrote the life of St. Louis at the request of the king's widow. Within half a century twenty-five years have been added to the average lives of old men; nobody would want those years wasted.

You know about Joshua Heilman, inventor of the combing machine, who could spin one pound of cotton into a thread so fine that it would stretch 334 miles. Now, the du Pont Company produces a fibre one-third thinner than the product of the silk worm. One pound of this new "thread" would stretch from the Atlantic to the Pacific ocean. The performance will not eclipse the silk worm entirely, for that marvelous creature produces a thread of greater tensile strength than any other—no thread of steel, of equal size, could equal the strength of the silk fibre.

For your own enlightenment, you should see the photograph of five intelligent American women, two elected to the municipal council, the other three elected mayor, treasurer, secretary, of Green Top, Mo. They decided that their community needed better government and, at the recent election, defeated eighteen men.

See the faces of the five victorious American ladies: Mrs. Floyd Beck, Mrs. Bryan Arnold, Mrs. John Young, Mrs. Ira Pearce, Mrs. C. H. Van Osdol; then try to find any five masculine city officials with as much intelligence, character and integrity in their faces.

In the murder of an unfortunate young woman, New York detectives think they see, at last, "the perfect crime," one in which the perpetrator cannot be identified.

Fortunately, there is no perfect crime, except in the imagination of the criminal or the detective story writer, because criminals are dull, cannot keep their mouths shut, are vain, boast, and the electric chair gets them. Also, they jump when a hand is laid on the shoulder; that helps detectives, and criminals are betrayed by fellow criminals.

England decides against any "military sanctions" as regards Italy. She will not close the Suez canal, destroying Italian communication with Ethiopia.

Conditions have changed since the airplane came.

Italy menaces the water supply of the Sudan and Egypt.

A few years ago that would have been a simple problem. England controlling the Mediterranean, with Gibraltar, would have sent her super-dreadnaughts to convince Italy that she had made a mistake, and Italy, probably, would have been convinced.

Now, Gibraltar, the Dardanelles and the super-dreadnaughts mean little. If England fired a gun at Mussolini, he would send a thousand planes with explosive and gas bombs to London. That situation calls for caution.

In New York, Joseph Dunninger has a small figure of Rameses II, surrounded by glass, given him by Howard Thurston, magician, who died in Florida last Monday, promising, if there is life after death, to come back and break the glass.

He will not come back, and he could not break the glass if he did return, because force cannot act without matter. A ghost can have no force, for no solid matter attaches to him. That is why photographs of ghosts are necessarily fraudulent; solid matter is needed to reflect light and make a photograph possible.

Any ghost would find far from this earth many occupations more exciting than coming all the way back to break a piece of glass. If we meet our dead friends, that will happen somewhere else, not here.

DR. DAFOE REVEALS ADDITION OF POLICEMEN AT NURSERY

Callander, Ont., April 15—Three provincial police officers were maintaining constant guard over the Dionne quintuplets here today following thwarting of a kidnap plot against the famous babies.

First intimation of a new kidnap plot came from Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician to the children since their birth and one of the trio of guardians over them since they became wards of the King.

Slightly more than a year ago the guard over the famous babies was doubled after the existence of a well-organized plot to kidnap the quintuplets became known.

In Montreal, where he was accorded a civic reception, Dr. Dafoe revealed the thwarting of the newest plot against the children.

In response to questions whether threatening letters had been received, Dr. Dafoe answered in the negative.

He indicated, however, that from private sources, the guardians of the quintuplets had learned of the plot and were enabled to take the steps necessary to balk it.

The single guard on duty at the Dafoe Hospital, where the quintuplets are housed here, was immediately increased to three, assuring the children twenty-four hour protection.

According to Dr. Dafoe, the conspirators had planned to spirit the babies from their nursery and hold them for ransom. In view of the great popularity of the five girls, it was believed a stupendous sum could be realized in ransom.

The first kidnap plot against the famous babies was disclosed in March, 1935, when doubling of the guard at the nursery aroused the curiosity of newspapermen.

Rumanian Quintuplets Die at Birth

Bucharest, Rumania, April 15 (INS)—Quintuplets — three boys and two girls—born to a kypsy mother in a roadside dith while their father snored in a drunken stupor nearby, died of exposure today a few hours after their birth.

Victims of primitive provincial conditions, the quintuplets—born prematurely—were unable to survive their ordeal in the ditch where their mother went to bear them a few minutes after ploughing a field.

A physician from the adjacent town of hodos said the mother was in satisfactory condition despite her experience, and that she was expected to recover.

The mother, 25-year-old Maxia Linguraru, has been living with her husband in a typical Gypsy hovel on the outskirts of Hodos in the Province of Bihor.

They were married some time ago, in accordance with the usual Gypsy rites.

From the moment of their birth, there was virtually no hope the quintuplets could survive.

The mother continued at work, ploughing a field near Hodos, until only a few moments before the quintuplets were born.

Miss Twelvetrees Granted Divorce

Los Angeles, April 15 (AP)—A quick hearing brought a divorce today for Helen Twelvetrees, blonde movie actress, from Jack Woody, business man. The film player's testimony that he abused her with unseemly language was corroborated by another actress, Ena Gregory. Woody did not contest.

PLOT AIMED AT WIFE OF ROOSEVELT

Washington, April 15 (INS)—In a bickering verbal exchange with questioners, a witness before the Senate lobby committee today admitted that he caused pictures of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt "entering a Negro meeting with two Negro escorts" to be distributed through the South.

He was Vance Muse, manager of the Southern committee to uphold the constitution at Houston, Texas. He said he "collaborated" with Allen S. Sheppard of the Order of American Patriots, in the distribution of these pamphlets.

They were originally distributed at the Macon, Ga., convention which endorsed the Georgia governor, Eugene Talmadge, for the presidency. Since then, Muse said, they have been sold "at printers' cost," throughout the South.

PARRIES QUESTIONS

Muse was threatened with contempt proceedings for interjecting what the committee chairman,

WOMAN'S CRIES ROUT INTRUDER

Awakened by noises, Mrs. Toby Dulck, 71, of 39 Nahant avenue, Revere, found a man in the kitchen of her home today, she told police. He grabbed her by the throat, but when she screamed, he fled.

Police searched the neighborhood but found no trace of the man.

Mrs. Dulck was asleep with her daughter, Ruth, when she heard someone prowling about in her home, she said.

It was believed the man was attempting to break into a dentist's office which leads off of Mrs. Dulck's apartment.

Boy Burns to Death

New London, Ct., April 15 (INS)—While playing near a bonfire, Martin Sousa, 4, of Waterford, was so severely burned he died today at a hospital.

MANSFIELD'S 'G-MAN' HIT BY FIN. COM.

Discovery today that a private detective had been secretly at work at City Hall for the last eight months caused a stir among city officials and started an immediate investigation by the Finance Commission.

The detective is William Devin of Quint avenue, Allston. He is working as an investigator for the city auditor.

City Auditor Charles J. Fox said Devin was hired with the approval of Mayor Mansfield and was being paid at the rate of $1000 a year.

CHECKS ALL BILLS

It is understood Devin's duties are to check up on legitimacy of all bills submitted to the city auditor for purchase of office materials and equipment, and to see that contracts are carried out according to specifications for labor and materials.

Learning of the detective's presence at City Hall, Chairman E. Mark Sullivan of the Finance Commission assigned Robert C. Cunniff, commission secretary, to investigate the investigator.

"I wonder why Mr. Devin's activities have been kept secret," said Sullivan. "We are beginning an inquiry as to his status and activities at once.

CITES SNOW PAYMENTS

"The Finance Commission is interested in this surprising new phase of the administration's activities.

"As we have ourselves been very much interested in finding out some of the things that, apparently, this detective was engaged to find out, the situation is especially significant.

"We understand why there might be a very good reason for employing such a person, particularly in view of admissions made in the recent snow investigation by City Auditor Fox and Public Works Commissioner Christopher J. Carven, that in paying snow removal bills for 1935 they were ignorant of irregularities. Had they known of the irregularities, they said, they would not have approved them for payment."

Retail Stores Open on Monday

Boston retail stores generally with some exceptions, will be open all day next Monday, April 20, according to announcement of the Retail Trade Board.

Quoddy Out Roosevelt Says

Washington, April 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that congressional disapproval had closed the door to further funds for the Passamaquoddy power project in Maine and the Florida ship canal.

The President intimated, however, that modified plans for both may be submitted to Capitol Hill.

At the same time the President explained to his press conference that flood control work may be included in the regular annual public works program of $500,000,000 which will be among his January budget estimates.

Just what modifications may be proposed in the Passamaquoddy and Florida ship canal projects, for which Congress has refused further funds, was not revealed by the President.

After a fight against the projects led by Vandenberg (R.-Mich), the Senate refused to appropriate money for the Florida ship canal. Passamaquoddy was not brought to a Senate vote.

In view of congressional disapproval, he said no further funds would be allocated to either proposition beyond present allotments.

Representative Brewster (R.), Maine, long active in behalf of the Passamaquoddy project, said he understood a modified proposal already was being prepared.

"We understand," he said, "that such a program already is in progress. And that a request for funds from money at the President's disposal will be made under this modified program."

MOLWAY GIVEN SIX MONTHS

Clement W. Molway, 25, of Murdock street, Brighton, who with Lewis F. Berret narrowly missed death in the electric chair for the murder of a Lynn theater employe in which the Millen Brothers later confessed, was sent to jail for six months today.

Molway was sentenced with Oliver T. Emery, of Vermont avenue, Somerville, by Judge Dowd, in Middlesex court after both had pleaded guilty to charges of using an automobile without authority.

When Attorney Charles W. Barret, counsel for Molway questioned the severity of the sentence Judge Dowd said:

"We'll have no more talk about this case. The sentence stands. These men should be in here for larceny. This power of pol pros is sometimes a dangerous practice."

HAWKES AND DILLON PUT ON TRIAL

A jury picked for the trial of James W. Hawkes and John F. Devlin, on charges growing out of the Boston school investigation, was ordered locked up today by Judge David F. Dillon, before whom the two men went on trial in Suffolk superior court.

Locking up of the jury, which is very rare except in capital cases, was requested by Assistant District Attorney Frederic T. Doyle, who is prosecuting the case for the government.

Devlin, who lives in Medford, and Hawkes, a resident of Jamaica Plain, are charged with conspiracy to steal from Joseph Wagner, assistant director of music in the Boston schools.

They are also charged with conspiracy to solicit Wagner to offer gifts and gratuities to a member of the school committee. Devlin alone is alleged to have attempted a larceny of $2000 from Wagner.

Wagner was one of the candidates for the position of director of music.

A large crowd waited in the courthouse corridor for seats at

RAIN CANCELS SOX-A'S GAME

Rainfall and cold weather caused Fenway Park to postpone the Red Sox-Athletics game this afternoon, second of the season, and make a double-header some time later in the summer. Despite an early sun and the fact that the groundkeeper had covered the infield with a heavy waterproof canvas, the raw day made play impossible.

It was a contrast between the summerish temperature of opening day, which drew more than 30,000 to the game, one of the largest inaugural day throngs on record.

BOOST FOR LANDON SEEN AS ILLINOIS REJECTS BORAH

KNOX SWEEPS STATE 2 TO 1; ROOSEVELT'S HUGE VOTE

Chicago, April 15 (INS)—Col. Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, was piling up a substantial lead in the Illinois primary's preferential vote for presidential nomination today as delayed returns from precincts down-state indicated that he would be a two to one winner over Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

In 5241 of the state's 7426 precincts the vote stood:

Knox, 331,193; Borah, 251,584; Knox's plurality is now 80,469.

Meanwhile, the victory of Governor Henry Horner over Dr. Herman N. Bundesen for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination appeared certain. Although trailing Bundesen in Cook County, Horner's downstate vote was gradually placing him out in front. Returns from 4976 precincts gave Horner 516,637 votes and Bundesen 513,972. Since the precincts that have not reported are acknowledged Horner strongholds, it was estimated Horner would win by a final 100,000 votes.

Neither Knox nor Borah had a slate of delegates for the Republican National Convention. The incomplete figures, however, indicated that the eight delegates-at-large to be selected by the state convention next month would, because of the advisory vote, support Knox.

Borah headquarters here believed that one or two down state districts would go for the Idaho Senator and, because the vote is advisory upon district delegates, he might salvage a few convention votes from the Knox deluge.

C. Wayland Brooks, young Chicago attorney, completely ran off with the Republican nomination as governor. He defeated former Governor Len Small in 4551 precincts by more than 200,000 votes.

Likewise, Otis F. Glenn, former United States Senator, defeated former Congressman William E. Hull, Peoria, for the G. O. P. nomination as Senator. Glenn polled a two to one lead over Hull in early returns and continued to maintain that advantage.

Two close races on the Republican ticket—that for lieutenant governor and attorney general—were still in doubt. George Hatzenbuhler, Bloomington, appeared to be the winner over John V. Clinnin and James A. McCullum in the contest for lieutenant governor, while Charles W. Hadley, Wheaton, held a slight lead over Thomas V. Sullivan in the attorney general's race.

The Knox victory was viewed as a severe if not fatal blow to Senator Borah's candidacy, particularly in view of the growing strength shown by Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

A total Democratic vote exceeding 1,500,000, the highest ever recorded for the party in an Illinois primary, served to strengthen the hopes of Democracy's leaders concerning the 1936 election. County Chairman Patrick Nash, generalissimo of the Bundesen campaign, attributed the large vote to a desire of the people "to show their preference for President Roosevelt."

President Roosevelt, unopposed for the Democratic presidential nomination as a consequence, polled a vote of record-breaking proportions.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis, polling about 90 per cent of the entire Democratic party vote, was renominated by the largest plurality ever recorded in an Illinois primary; estimates placed it at one million votes.

The total vote in Illinois was approximately 2,225,000.

Senator Borah's defeat in the preferential contest was expected to prove a turning point in his race for the G. O. P. nomination, for the Senator considered the Illinois test the crucial one of his candidacy.

Although the preferential vote is not binding on the 50 district delegates elected yesterday, Col. Knox's victory, it was expected, would mean indorsement of the state con-

Nebraska "Writes In" Gov. Landon

Lincoln, Neb., April 15 (AP)—"Write-in" votes for Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, who was not entered as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, attained appreciable proportions today as returns from yesterday's Nebraska primary election came in slowly.

In 1264 of 2025 precincts Landon had 9147 "write-in" votes, or nearly a fifth of the 41,717 votes cast for Senator William E. Borah, the only candidate for the Republican presidential nomination whose name was printed on the ballot.

Several delegate candidates expressed favor for Landon, but all 14 Nebraska delegates were uninstructed.

Colonel Frank Knox received 128 "write-in" votes and former President Hoover 200 in the same number of precincts.

President Roosevelt was assured the support of the Democratic delegation. The only Democratic presidential candidate on the ballot, he had 79,354 votes in 1264 precincts. Two voters wrote in the name of Alfred E. Smith as running mate for the President.

Drive On Speeding Ordered in Quincy

A more rigid enforcement of the automobile laws was ordered, today, by Mayor Thomas J. Burgin of Quincy in an order sent to acting chief Daniel Dorsa.

In his order the mayor said:

"I am greatly disturbed over the increase in automobile accidents. I want you to order your men to be more observing for violations.

"The officers should be firm, but careful to avoid quarrels with motorists and they must approach people courteously and talk to them in a courteous manner."

2 BOSTON MEN HELD IN BOND FRAUD QUIZ

Government investigators have been questioning two Boston men and three others, for five days, in an attempt to solve a $5,000,000 bond and stock-certificate swindle, the Boston Evening American learned today.

The men, all of whom are known in every large city of the country for their suspected connection with bond thefts in the past are incommunicado in New York City.

Authorities believe they are the key to solution of the biggest bond and stock racketeering with which the Department of Justice has ever had to cope.

Liberty Bonds, U. S. Treasury certificates and stock certificates of private corporations all figure in the alleged operations of the group that engineered the swindle, it was learned.

COUNTERFEITING CHARGED

One phase of their alleged activities was the counterfeiting of certificates of ownership of some of the so-called "blue chip" securities listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Rhea Whitley, chief of the New York division of the Department of Justice, declined to discuss the holding of th efive men, but careful investigation of reports here revealed they are being held "unofficially" but not the less securely.

Pending the outcome of the questioning, they are not being allowed to communicate with friends.

The Boston men in the group of five suspects are believed to have been involved in the disappearance of five $100,000 Liberty Bonds from a New York institution several years ago.

They are not, however, the two men who fought a long and widely publicized fight against extradition from Massachusetts to New York a few years ago.

STOLEN FROM BANK

Investigation of the $5,000,000 operations of the suspected gang began after conviction of several persons in Texas in connection with the disposal of the Liberty Bonds, which had been stolen from a teller's cage in a New York bank by a man carrying a walking-stick with a wad of gum on the end.

Painstaking investigation gradually revealed that many other methods of stealing bonds and stock certificates had been resorted to, and all clues indicated one gang was involved in these varied operations in a dozen large cities.

Only a short time ago, the investigation took a new turn, when counterfeit stock certificates were uncovered.

Government agents discovered the group had connections which made disposal of the stocks and bonds comparatively easy. Investigators found evidence indicating the percentage of return to the thieves was much higher than is customarily the case in the disposal of stolen goods.

Plot Against First Lady Revealed

Senator Black (D.) of Alabama, called "wholly immaterial" matter in his answers to questions. He bluntly refused to answer questions about his own connection with the Order of American Patriots.

The matter of the pamphlets was brought out by Black in questions.

"Have you caused, through the Order of American Patriots, pamphlets or printed sheets to be circulated with reference to the President of the United States, or the family of the President with hoped-for political effect?" Black asked. Muse said he had.

"Describe the pictures, please," said Black.

"I can, but it would be nauseating for me to do it. I'm a Southerner, and I believe in the supremacy of the white race."

TAKEN TO CAUCUS

"Did you take any to the Macon convention?"

"Yes."

"Well, describe them."

"It was a picture of Mrs. Roosevelt going to a Negro meeting, with two Negro escorts—you told me to say that."

"Yes," said Black, "but I didn't force you to circulate them."

"No sir," said the witness with one hand over his heart, and the other held high in the air. "My conscience forced me to do that. It was here"—he patted his breast.

Muse said he paid $50 to print the first of the pictures, and that Sheppard paid for others, selling them "at printing costs."

"They're all over the South."

STATEMENTS PRINTED

Black said the pictures were accompanied by statements "about the President, his wife and members of his family." Muse said he was not the author of these, and explained that he believed they were taken from newspapers.

Muse said that John J. Raskob and Pierre S. Dupont contributed $5000 each to the southern committee to uphold the Constitution, aware that the money was to help pay expenses of the Talmadge convention.

Muse explained that he visited Raskob in New York with John Henry Kirby, chairman of the southern committee to uphold the Constitution.

Kirby was on the stand briefly at the outset of today's session, but Muse was placed in the witness chair when the former said that the manager had figures asked by the committee.

TOLD DETAILS

"Did you tell Mr. Raskob and Mr. duPont the nature of the work the committee was doing? Black asked.

"I did."

Muse said that Raskob and duPont knew nothing about the pamphlets that were distributed, at the time.

"Well, have you since then heard from either of them, whether they approved or disapproved of the meeting?"

'No."

Kirby arose in the rear of the room then.

"I expressed disapproval of that," said he.

CORD CLUE OUT IN PROBE OF TUB KILLING

New York, April 15 (INS)—Another clue—the "cord clue"—blew up today and the police investigating the strangling of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton were thrown back where they started five days ago. Prospects of an early solution of the crime seemed remote.

The police had placed a great deal of reliance in the belief that the 13-inch piece of cord which the killer of the talented fiction writer used to bind her wrists before he choked here to death in her apartment had been manufactured by the Schlichter Jute Cordage company of Philadelphia.

But that company announced it did not make this type of cord found near the body.

This brought the investigation virtually to a standstill, with no dirtcl lead to a suspect in sight and no immediate likelihood of an arrest. In a word, the police were stumped.

Rumors were a dime a dozen again today. The latest was that the authorities were interested in finding a man who, carrying a fake badge, was reported to have been pestering apartment house dwellers in the neighborhood where Mrs. Titterton lived.

This man, neighbors said, was caught several times in apartment halls, and always flashed a badge, explaining on one that he represented the telephone company; again that he was a gas inspector.

Observers who have been following the murder investigation were skeptical that anything would come of this "clue," either. One after another "clues" have been vanishing.

Police officials insisted they have no description of the slayer. They even denied previous reports that three strands of sandy hair had been found on the bed where Mrs. Titterton was attacked, and that prints had been found on the woman novelist's garment belt.

SCHOOL JURORS LOCKED UP

the trial and when the jury had been picked, the doors were opened. After the seats were filled the doors were closed, barring a large overflow crowd.

The commonwealth and the two defendants exhausted all their peremptory challenges, 28 in number, before the jury was selected, and Judge Devlin excused seven men. Six were excused because they knew one defendant or had formed an opinion, while the seventh was a Works Progress Administration worker, employed on a school project.

Lester D. Allen, K street, South Boston, employed as an estimator, was named foreman of the jury by Judge Dillon.

The other jurors are John J. Borstell, School street, Dorchester, a clerk; Leon K. McConnell, Center street, Jamaica Plain, accountant; John H. Hill, Highland street, Roxbury, steward; Joseph Nassano, Prince street, North End, chauffeur; Walter J. ## Scotchman Sends $50 to Flood Fund

Hartford, Ct., April 15 (INS)—A check for ten pounds, drawn on the Royal Bank of Scotland, was received today by Mayor Thomas J. Spellacy from J. Samuel Hunter of Edinburgh, Scotland, "as a small token of sympathy" to be added to the flood relief fund.

Mother Burned In Blast, 4 Flee

Riverside, R. I., April 15—A girl and her brother jumped from a second story window, their mother was severely burned and a cat and dog were burned to death today when an oil stove exploded and fired their home at 52 Jackson street.

Mrs. Louise Massey, 50, burned about the face, neck and hands, rushed back into the house to find her daughter, Dorothy, 14, but the girl was out of the flaming dwelling.

Louise, 16, and her brother, William, 26, jumped when flames enveloped the lower part of the house.

New Trouble Fans Peabody Strike

A new labor difficulty broke forth in the Peabody leather strike when 200 workers employed at the Agnes Tanning Company found themselves locked out through a misunderstanding and then refused to go to work after officials of the concern straightened the error out.

Union officials said that the men would return to their tasks tomorrow a satisfactory agreement having been reached an hour after the men refused to return to work for the day.

Five Bolts Strike

Bridgeport, Ct., April 15 (INS)—During a freak local thunder storm today five bolts of lightning struck, starting small fires in each instance.

Home, Car, $20 Month Plan Given Congress

Washington, April 15 (US)—Transformation of desert lands all the way from the Canadian border to Mexico into a virtual paradise for homesteaders—this is the plan which a small group of Middle-Westerners are laying this week before Congress.

A 20-acre tract of farm land, a comfortable, nicely furnished house, farm tools, an automobile or truck, cows, pigs and chickens, and a $20-a-month drawing account for the first year's expenses, all to cost each tenant $7000, is part of the scheme.

Titled "The Mid-Continent Reclamation Project" the plan is the brain-child of A. B. Hulit of Chicago. Two Senate committee hearings on the subject have already been held.

But a woman—Miss Alvina S. Lenke of Chicago—will present her ideas on the matter on the floor of the Senate tomorrow. She represents a group of 100 women who are interested in the project. Miss Lenke said:

"It was no doubt woman's instinct that prompted us to become members of this movement. We saw in the plans this organization has adopted a great, national importing movement for the creation of a vast number of self-sustaining homes.

"The building and furnishings of these homes would create a volume of employment at prevailing wage scale, a condition that would contribute very materially to a solution of the nation's unemployment problems."

Outbreak in Venezuela

Georgetown, British Guiana, April 15 (AP)—Unconfirmed reports said today serious disorders had broken out in Venezuela. Only meagre accounts were received here.

FABRICS TRIUMPH

JUDGES RULE ON EVENING DRESSES

Feminine allure in bewitching forms, from smooth sophistication to ruffled girlishness, was displayed yesterday at the Fashion Congress session in the Ritz-Carlton Hotel.

Evening fashions were the topic of the day.

Sophisticated lines and fabrics triumphed over ruffles and furbelows, except in dresses selected for very young girls.

Young Things these days prefer evening dresses with zest and pep, it was pointed out authoritatively, rather than gowns of the "angelic" type. And a young girl, to be a college boy's delight, will wear a dark-colored evening dress or an all white one, of the "smooth" variety.

Older girls and young matrons will find an exciting array of new fabrics designed to make them comfortable as well as glamorous under a summer moon.

Non-crushable linens, silk jersey, wool challis and batiste have been fashioned into delectable evening dresses of assured coolness.

Embroidered organdie over taffeta and marquisette over cire satin are two new fabric combinations which won immediate approval.

Horse-Shoe Table

The fashion session took place in the French Room of the Ritz, where judges sat at a horseshoe-shaped table facing a platform at the end of the room.

Mrs. Daniel P. Comstock of Cambridge, chic society matron, headed the fashion jury.

The other judges, chosen for good taste and knowledge of style, were: Mrs. W. Chandler Bowditch, Mrs. F. D. Adams, Mrs. John E. Yerxa, Mrs. Everett Morse, Jr., Mrs. Robert Hillyer, Mrs. John Perrin, Mrs. A. Barr Comstock, Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Mrs. John Adie and Mrs. Ronald Cordingly.

Miss Annice Brink, fashion editor of the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, acted as coordinator and explained to the judges the mechanics of the Congress.

"Readers of our newspapers will be informed about your selections and your comments on good taste," she explained. "Through the fashion pages of these papers, women obtain information about style and taste and will be influenced by your judgments today."

There was less opportunity for controversy yesterday than in previous sessions of the Congress because the show was a succession of lovely dresses which practically exhausted the vocabulary of praise among the judges.

"I can hear my daughter saying, 'Mother, that's just the dress I want,'" said Mrs. A. Barr Comstock.

Miss Carolyn Pierce was the model. The dress a sheer navy blue with a band of embroidered organdie from neckline to toe.

"Just the kind of a dress to make the stag line stand up and cheer," one of the judges said.

Reminiscent of 1912 was a much-applauded black dinner dress modeled by Miss Katharine Day, attractive debutante. The camisole bodice and full skirt beginning at the narrow waist had a quaint dash which appealed to the judges.

Miss Joan Jacoby, another of yesterday's pretty society mannequins, created a little stir when she appeared in a hand blocked batiste dress the bright print of which was taken off the back of a colored mammy in Jamaica!

"Grand for Dancing"

"Grand for Summer dancing and particularly good for cruise wear," was the verdict.

Miss Alice Scofield, another model, was unusually effective in a chiffon gown of chartreuse with a flowing sash in burgundy dahlia.

Directoire in its high waist and softly clinging lines, the dress was presented as a young girl's frock.

"It is perfectly beautiful on Miss Scofield," one of the judges said, "but I think it is not appropriate for a young girl."

After considerable discussion it was agreed that the Directoire, or Empire style, is excellent for young girls, but that chiffon is too sophisticated a fabric.

The stores and specialty shops which exhibited clothes at yesterday's session were: R. H. White Company, Lamson and Hubbard, Jordan Marsh Company, Jay's, ford Hollidge, Manahan, Chandler and Company, Fredley's and Theodore, Inc.

Photographs of evening dresses which won the Fashion Congress tag of approval will be published daily for a week, beginning tomorrow, in the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser. # HAVERHILL BID STUDIED BY LANDON

KANSAN MAY VISIT BAY STATE

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas, outstanding candidate for the Republican nomination for President, may come to Haverhill next July or August.

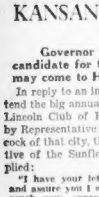
In reply to an invitation to attend the big annual outing of the Lincoln Club of Haverhill, sent by Representative Frank D. Babcock of that city, the chief executive of the Sunflower State replied:

"I have your letter of April 7 and assure you I appreciate very much your expression of good will and promise of support in the coming campaign as well as your commendation of the Kansas record.



Frank D. Babcock

"Replying to that portion of your letter inviting my presence at the outing of the Lincoln Republicans of Haverhill in July or August, I am not making any definite engagements for dates so far ahead but if you will bring this matter to my attention at some later time, I shall then be pleased to make decision.

"With very best wishes, I am,

"Cordially yours,

(sgd) Alf M. Landon, Governor"

Representative Babcock is one of the 58 Republican members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives who have joined the "Landon Club of Massachusetts" and been appointed an official Landon leader in the Second District, by Edwin F. Parker, president of the club.

Republican members of the Massachusetts Senate meet today at the Parker House as the guests of the Landon Club. Speakers include former Lieutenant Governor Gaspar G. Bacon and Governor's Councillor Winfield A. Schuster of East Douglas.

Both Bacon and Schuster are candidates for delegates to the Republican national convention. Schuster has no opposition.

Landon speakers will attend a big meeting Friday night under the auspices of the Medford Men's Republican Club in the women's clubhouse, Governor avenue, that city.

All candidates for delegate and alternate to the Republican national convention in Cleveland and to the state convention in Springfield have been invited to be present.

CHOICE UP TO VOTERS

Landon supporters are hammering home at these meetings the opportunity that the voters will have in the April 28 primary of writing in their choice for President in the blank space which will be provided on the ballot under a special law.

In 1928 the same opportunity was provided and Herbert Hoover was the choice of the Republican voters. The Massachusetts delegates at the convention that year were therefore practically under a mandate to vote for the people's choice.

A majority for Landon will have the same weight on the delegates this year at Cleveland, it is pointed out.

Deer Island Fugitive Held In $5000

Frederick C. Brown, 23, fugitive thief from Deer Island, who was captured because he sought his wife, today pleaded not guilty in Roxbury court to new charges of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Judge Albert Hayden held him in $5000 for the grand jury. Brown has been at large since he escaped from City Hospital, February 2, where he was to have undergone an operation while serving a year's sentence at Deer Island.

Yesterday he appeared at the home of Mrs. Marjorie Vincent of Warren street, Roxbury, where his wife, Mrs. May Brown, and his step-daughter, Miss Mildred Blute, 21, live. Mrs. Vincent testified he attempted to force his way in by waving a toy pistol.

She quoted him:

"If you don't let me in, you'll pay for this."

Mrs. Vincent said Brown ran after she screamed.

Chinatown Squad Raids Dope Den

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

SERGEANT F. SLINEY SERGEANT W. H. FOLEY

Boston's newly organized Chinatown squad swooped into the Harrison avenue-Kneeland street section, seized three Chinese and a complete outfit for smoking the narcotic today. Sergeants Frank Sliney and William H. Foley, who led the raid, are shown examining the paraphernalia. Cans of contraband narcotic can be seen. The raid was as much a surprise in police circles as the dope squad at headquarters was completely unaware of the planned raid.

On the Job

By a happy coincidence, the fire laddies had just parked their ladder truck and engine at 12½ Dartmouth place when fire broke out today in the chimney next door at 12 Dartmouth place, Back Bay.

And so, extinguishing the small blaze at the latter address, they crossed over to the neighboring roof and subdued the flames rising out of the chimney. There was little damage at either place.

Battery B Vets To Hold Banquet

The 2th annual banquet and reunion of the veterans of Battery B, 55th Artillery regiment, A. E. F., will be held Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Hotel Manger.

More than 200 reservations have been made, with delegations coming from New York, Newark, N. J., Kansas City, Mo., Raleigh, N. C., Buffalo, Philadelphia, and Campbell, Minn.

Battery B had the distinction of having the longest continuous fighting record of any A. E. F. unit.

30-Day Halt

Council Bluffs, Iowa, April 15 (AP)—Locked up on a charge of kicking out a window in a tavern, Bernice Rosendahl, 23, showed her displeasure by kicking out eight windows in the city jail.

Furthermore, she told the police judge next morning, she would kick out all the rest of the windows if he put her back there.

But the judge sentenced her to 30 days in the county jail, where the cells were windowless.

RAIDERS SMASH DOORS, SEIZE TRIO AND DOPE

With sledgehammers and crowbars, five members of Division Four's newly-organized Chinatown squad made the first of a series of dope cleanup raids today.

They battered down three barred doors on as many floors of a building in Harrison avenue, between Kneeland and Harvard streets, arrested three Chinese and seized opium, pipes and other paraphernalia for smoking the narcotic.

Sergeants Frank Sliney and John Devine led the raiders under orders from Captain James F. Daley, new chief of the Warren avenue division.

The raid took place at 8 a. m. while crowds of persons on the way to work in the garment district milled about, watching.

Arrested and booked on charges of being present where opium was found were Chin Wah, 35, and Chan Foo, 44, both of whom gave the Harrison avenue address as their residence, and Chin Shue, 37, of Beach street.

Police seized 15 ounces of opium, 15 ounces of yen shee (an opium derivitive), three pipes for smoking the weed, a cooking lamp and other material.

2 Fishermen Rescued, Save Their Catch

Marooned all night 17 miles off Salem, two Beverly fishermen were rescued today by Coast Guards and towed back to Beverly—saving gasoline and their 1700 pounds of fish.

The fishermen, Charles Alander of Wendell avenue and Melvin Nelson of Water street, had been obliged to wait all night after they discovered their motor wet and disabled.

Being of a patient bent, however, they had resumed fishing today while waiting for rescue. Coast Guard surfboats, patrol boats and a Coast Guard amphibian plane had been sent to search for them.

Through an error in names, Beverly police were first informed that the fishermen were Harry and Benjamin Pofcher, Salem fish market proprietors, who own the 36-foot motorboat and who employ Alander and Nelson to do the fishing.

Surplus Tax Menace

Boston Jewelers Fear New Levies

Boston jewelers today cast an anxious eye toward Washington, where a subcommittee on ways and means is drafting a bill to tax undistributed corporate earnings.

The jewelry business is a luxury field, its members declared, and is subject more than most to wide fluctuations.

Christmas business done in December is as great as the total volume of business in several other months during the year. A jeweler's business calendar is one of peaks and valleys, rapid ups and downs.

As that is true of any one year, it is also true of any period of years, they said, with periods of good business offsetting dull streaks.

Obviously, any competent jeweler in the retail business must store up a surplus against the inevitable slow months, slow years and depressions.

S. Deane Cook, treasurer of A. Stowell's, said:

"We in the jewelry business were the first to feel the depression, felt it more and felt it longer than most retail businesses, because of the fact that we are largely a luxury type of business.

WEATHERED THE STORM

"We prepared for just such a condition, as well as all other well conducted businesses did, and were able to weather what what turned out to be a long and severe storm.

"Had we distributed our earnings as fast as they appeared during good business periods, we shouldn't have been so fortunate.

"If the government puts a tax on undistributed earnings that will force a distribution in dividends, you can see what must happen.

"The jewelry business will be ready for neither very good times nor very bad. For in good times, we require a much bigger inventory, and big inventories must be purchased out of capital.

"We think the corporation surplus bill is dangerous."

Allen Davidson, treasurer of Long's, jewelers on Summer street, said:

"When the government places a tax on surpluses to enforce their distribution in the form of dividends, it will stop in its tracks any sort of healthy growth.

HOW BUSINESS GROWS

"Business grows primarily when they plough back their earnings into the company in better equipment, wider stocks and enlarged capacity for service.

"Thus growth depends on surpluses.

"I suppose that the tax-drafters will provide for enough reserve to give a business some protection against depression.

"It is problematical, however, whether they will permit as strong a bulwark against fluctuation as a careful corporation would like.

"In the jewelry business particularly, where business varies widely from month to month and from year to year, a surplus is more of a necessity than in many other lines.

"For those two reasons especially are we opposed to a corporation surplus tax in any form."

SURPLUSES VITAL

Said J. Victor Day, an executive of the Smith-Patterson Company:

"When you stop a possibility of growth, expansion and improvement in a business, you stop the incentive to do business at all.

"When you drain off corporation surpluses as fast as they accrue, you stop the possibility of growth.

"The corporation surplus tax is not yet drafted," as I understand it. But no matter how they finally work it out, it will still tax surpluses or force corporations to distribute their earnings, either of which is dangerous.

"Furthermore, especially in the jewelry business, a change in business conditions for the better always means a large increase in inventories.

"Unless a business has an adequate surplus, it must go to the banks for money with which to increase its stocks and take advantage of good times.

"If that happens all over the country at the same time, there must necessarily be a credit stringency and an increase in interest rates.

LEAGUE CHIEFS, ALOISI TALK ARMISTICE

Geneva, April 15 (INS)—Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy arrived here late today and conferred immediately with Salvador de Madariaga, chairman of the League of Nations conciliation committee of 13, and Joseph Avenol, secretary general of the League.

It was reported they were discussing conditions of an immediate armistice in the Italo-Ethiopian war. It was pointed out, however, Baron Aloisi could not act definitely for Rome.

The committee of thirteen meets at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

CRISIS FOR LEAGUE

The Italo-Ethiopian crisis was rushed toward a climax today as the League battled a problem involving a grave threat to its very existence.

Developments occurred favoring both Italy and Ethiopia, with the league left "in the middle," its prestige threatened with further impairment by dim prospects of settling the thorny issue.

Coincident with news Italian armies had entered Dessye, reportedly opening the way to Addis Ababa, the league published cold statistics showing economic sanctions already in effect had cut down Italian exports 59 per cent.

DENY ATROCITIES

At the same time the league published Ethiopia's denial of Italy's atrocity charges, replying with a long list of bombings, specifying 76 instances, and telling of huge shipments of poison gas to East Africa.

The swift Italian advances in Ethiopia and the effect existing sanctions are having on Italy will be two of the most important factors discussed at the meeting of the league's conciliating committee of thirteen, scheduled for tomorrow, and the meeting of the league's sanctions committee of eighteen, scheduled to convene later.

The league faced a dilemma, with opponents of Italy pointing to the effect of sanctions and supporters pointing to the military victories in their various demands for action.

The question of whether sanctions should be dropped, maintained, or increased presented grave difficulties.

TITANIC HEROINE DARES SEA

Mrs. Futrelle Tells How She Overcame Fear

A few days ago, a steamship of the American Merchant Line docked at Boston.

Among the passengers was a pleasant faced, motherly looking lady, who stood quietly smiling and chatting with friends and relations, apparently describing the experiences of her voyage.

Beyond the fact that she was a middle-aged lady returning from a trip to England, there was certainly nothing to indicate that there stood the heroine and survivor of one of the most terrible disasters the sea has ever known.

Or that she was returning within two days of the date of that fateful anniversary . . . and that the return marked her first sight of the sea since the disaster.

Few knew that there stood Mrs. Jacques Futrelle, survivor of the sinking of the Titanic.

Twenty-four years ago to the day, Mrs. Futrelle lived through one of the most harrowing catastrophes in history.

On that fateful April 15th, in the bleak morning gloom that lay like an enshrouding blanket upon an ice laden ocean, the Atlantic liner charging full speed ahead upon her maiden voyage, splintered amid a mountain of ice, and sank, carrying with her 1503 souls.

MRS. JACQUES FUTRELLE

One of those souls was Jacques Futrelle, the author-husband of the heroine.

She was to survive as a heroine upon that horrible night, of a real life drama more stirring than the fiction which either she as a playwright, or her husband as an author, had ever conceived.

Worth to Title

But in the years which were to follow, after the first shock of the tragedy had passed, and the business of facing life with two small children had begun for her—then it was that May Futrelle finally proved the worth of that title of heroine.

For the cheerful friendly countenance which greets you today bears no trace of either the harrowing experience which brought her to widowhood, nor of the subsequent years filled with the considerably man-sized job of being not only homemaker, but a bread winner as well. Her job has been well done, and she can look back now after nearly a quarter of a century with many pleasant memories to fill the years.

"But it was not so at first," —she will tell you.

"The memory of it remained locked in my heart for years. For years I could not even speak about it. And then I realized that this was wrong. I had to go on and face life, and that experience was a part of my life. My daughter tried for years to persuade me to make another crossing, and visit her in England. And that's all there is to it. I just did."

She admitted, however, that the huge, shining Aquitania, upon which she embarked six months ago, rather terrified her with its speed and that she decided upon the smaller and slower American Merchant Trader for the return voyage.

"I sometimes think," said Mrs. Futrelle, "that our lives are foreordained and that we sometimes have premonitions of events that are to take place.

"I had always, even as a child, possessed the fear that some day I would meet with an accident at sea. I don't like the sea. But Jacques did. And even he, I believe, had a strange, almost uncanny premonition of what was to happen. His last story in the famous "Thinking Machine" series, which made newspaper history, he had prophetically named —'The Problem of the Life Raft.' It concerned a shipwreck, and was the last thing he ever wrote. There's no explaining that, is there?"

ROBBERY PLOT NIPPED, 7 HELD

Lawrence, April 15—Suspected members of a gang plotting the wholesale looting of stock in several Lawrence clothing stores, seven New York men were arrested today and two motor trucks and two automobiles seized.

The men arrested gave their names as David Cohen, 43, New Lot avenue, Brooklyn; Abe Sheusal, 42, East 23rd street, Brooklyn; Sebastian Sanchey, 33, Madison avenue, New York; Jaime Matos, 34, Wales avenue, New York, and the truck drivers, Frank Castadra, 24, East 129th street; Julio Rodriquez, West 114th street, and Alfred A. Pereiro, 24, East 98th street, all of New York.

SENATE WEIGHS RITTER'S FATE

Washington, April 15 (AP)—After hearing eight days of testimony and counsel arguments, the Senate locked its doors today at 12:08 p. m. and began deliberations on seven House impeachment charges against Federal Judge Halstead L. Ritter of the Southern district of Florida.

No one could say how long the secret session would last. Debate in the last impeachment trial in 1933 required more than two hours.

The doors were to be opened upon conclusion of the deliberations and seven separate ballots taken in open session. A two-thirds majority on any article would be necessary to convict. A guilty verdict on any count means automatic removal from office.

ITALIAN ARMY MARCHES ON DESSYE

Copyright, 1936, by Associated Press

Rome, April 15—Italy's advancing northern army achieved its major immediate objective of capture of Dessye today, the government announced officially, opening the heart of Ethiopia to the conquering Fascist forces.

Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief of the Italian armies in East Africa, reporting the occupation of the former field headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie, said in a communique:

"Our troops entered Dessye this morning."

From that point, 140 miles directly south of the former northern front lines at Amba Alaji and 170 miles northeast of Addis Ababa, a good automobile road runs into Ethiopia's capital.

The Fascist campaigners covered the 125-mile course down from Lake Ashangi, scene of the earlier defeat of Haile Selassie's imperial bodyguard, to Dessye in nine days, despite bad weather and difficult roads.

En route, the troops captured large quantities of war materials.

Dessye is an important Ethiopian military base and commercial, caravan and political center.

Ellsworth Given Hubbard Medal

ELECTROLUX is silent and stays silent because it has no moving parts

Also because its operating method is basically different, Electrolux offers greater efficiency and more years of satisfactory service

IF YOU have owned some other kind of automatic refrigerator, you know what a comfort a silent one would be. But Electrolux's silence has a deeper significance, because the operating principle behind it is the basic reason for every exclusive Electrolux advantage.

There's nothing noisy about a little gas flame—and, since that's the whole "power-plant" in Electrolux, there is nothing noisy about Electrolux, either. And nothing to wear and become noisy.

NO MOVING PARTS

There isn't a single moving part in this refrigerator! A simple refrigerant, heated by the tiny gas flame, then cooled, freezes ice and produces constant cold.

This completely simple method gives you three very important savings. Naturally the operating cost is lower, food is more fully protected. And since parts that do not move cannot wear, you are freed from all worry about costly depreciation.

Last year Electrolux was judged by thousands to be the most beautiful of all refrigerators. This year the interior has been modernized to match the exterior. It has every modern convenience . . . every time- and trouble-saver . . . that any woman could want.

CONVINCE YOURSELF

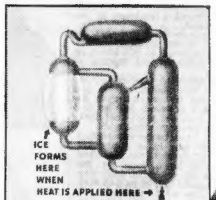
But nothing we can tell you can be quite as convincing as actually seeing Electrolux in operation. Go to your local gas company or gas appliance dealer. See why the popularity of Electrolux has become a national trend. A demonstration will obligate you in no way—and may repay you many times. Remember, less than 15¢ a day puts Electrolux—the modern gas refrigerator—in your kitchen.



This simplified diagram shows why Electrolux needs no moving parts. Parts that do not move cannot wear. This means more years of satisfactory service . . . less loss through depreciation.

Remember Celestine Madeiros? Why, of course you do, you say!

Madeiros was the fellow who was electrocuted with Sacco and Vanzetti, back in 1927.

Madeiros, chalky-faced and black-moustached, was the first of the doomed trio to be strapped in the chair at Charlestown state prison, that sultry August night which was marked by bombings and rioting all around the world.

Madeiros died a murderer's death while the place of execution was guarded by more than 800 state and city police, armed with riot guns, machine guns, gas bombs and high-powered hoselines.

Sure, you remember Celestine Madeiros. You could hardly forget him.

But maybe you don't remember why they electrocuted Madeiros.

Or why, having been sentenced to death, he was reprieved no less than six successive times, enduring over and over again all the "mental torture" which more recently received so much advertisement with less apparent justification in the case of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

Don't blame yourself, however, even if you can't call to mind the crime for which Celestine Madeiros belatedly paid the penalty.

Reflected Glory

For one of fate's little ironies was the fact that the man who died with Sacco and Vanzetti was absolved—against his own will—of guilt in the celebrated South Braintree payroll murders, on which the attention of the world had long been focused.

Having twice been convicted of a murder of his own, a murder brutal and unprovoked enough to win him his full meed of underworld notoriety, Madeiros did his best to assume responsibility also for a part in the killings which Sacco and Vanzetti denied to the last.

But all his alleged confession ever won for Madeiros was the doubtful benefit of repeated postponements of his electrocution.

He failed to have his famous deathhouse companions. And his own grim demise only achieved front-page headlines by reason of his association with the pair whose defense had been so unprecedentedly sensational.

Out Wrentham way, however, they'll still tell you today that Celestine Madeiros got merely what was coming to him.

As a murderer, they'll tell you, he needed to bask in no reflected glory.

Wrentham residents have not forgotten the morning of November 1, 1924.

Into the little, one-story Wrentham National Bank, on that morning, walked three dapper young gunmen.

One of them guarded the door. One of them held at pistol-point three terrified girl clerks. And one of them shoved a big, blue revolver through the grill-work of a paying teller's cage, within which was Cashier James E. Carpenter, 80-years-old—and too brave a man for his own safety!

"Up with your hands," ordered the bandit who was covering Carpenter.

The aged cashier obeyed, but before he did so, he swept to one side and away from the window a pile of banknotes which he had been counting.

That was reckless enough, but his next act was more reckless still. Looking squarely into the muzzle of the weapon which threatened him, he tried to reach with one foot a concealed electric alarm button in the floor just behind him.

Pistol Roars Twice

His movement was too much for the trigger-finger of the watching gunman. The latter's big revolver roared twice. One of the heavy bullets tore through Carpenter's chest. The other struck him in the back as he tottered and fell.

At the sound, the bandits made precipitately for the door. They didn't bother about money.

As they fled, Miss Bertha White, one of the girl clerks, risked her own life to jump for the alarm button which Cashier Carpenter had tried so desperately to touch. A big gong, outside the building began clanging its warning.

By this time, however, the gunmen had piled into a blue touring car, which had been standing outside the bank, its engine running.

Waiting at the wheel of this car had been a fourth member of the bandit gang. He was an older man than the others, a thick-set fellow of 45 or 50.

He had the machine in motion as his pals leaped to the running boards. Off the auto roared, through the square and away in the direction of Franklin.

Telephone wires were flashing news of the shooting, with a description of the bandit car.

Outside Franklin, that communication, a quick-thinking police chief, F. G. Knowlton, barricaded the highway with a truck, behind which he and his officers lay in wait with riot guns and drawn revolvers.

Avoid Trap

The fleeing robbers, however, avoided the trap by a hair-raising sprint, at 70 miles an hour, through a series of woodroads.

Not until next afternoon, the afternoon of Sunday, November 2, was the bandit auto found. It had been abandoned in a patch of underbrush just off River street, in Rehoboth, 26 miles from Wrentham.

A man-hunt of New England wide proportions was in progress by that time.

In charge of the investigation in Massachusetts were State Detectives Joseph Ferrari and Michael Fleming.

The case wasn't one of murder yet, but they expected that it would be, for 80-year-old Carpenter, lighting for his life at the Attleboro hospital, seemed unlikely to have the strength to rally from his wounds.

He finally died, 48 hours later.

Two bullets, removed by surgeons from Carpenter's body, were turned over to Captain Charles A. Van Amburgh, state police ballistics expert.

He reported them to be of .45 caliber and of an old-fashioned type. They had probably been fired, he said, from cartridges loaded with black instead of smokeless powder.

In this opinion Van Amburgh was supported by State Chemist Perlin Charter, who had analyzed the burned residue left on the metal bars of the Wrentham Bank cage through which the gunman had fired his shots at Carpenter.

Black powder, not smokeless, had been used, said Charter.

A trifling clue, that seemed, but it was to help to doom Celestine Madeiros.

First good break in the case, from the police point of view, came on November 6, when Pawtucket officers picked up Alfred W. Bedard, 50, as a suspicious person.

To police cars, from several sources, had come the information that Bedard had been seen driving a big, blue touring car of the type used in the Wrentham Bank holdup.

Detectives Ferrari and Fleming were notified of the arrest and they were not long in confronting Bedard with witnesses who identified him as having been at the wheel of the bandit auto.

With the shadow of the electric chair upon him, Bedard had no heart in remain defiant under skilled questioning by the veteran investigators.

He talked—and talked plenty!

Police Swoop

Acting on information furnished them by Bedard, who had less than no relish at all for the thought of going alone to the "hot seat," Ferrari and Fleming went next day to Providence.

There, assisted by a small army of 40 police officers, under command of police Lieutenant Harry F. Drown, they surrounded and searched at least a dozen cheap lodging houses, one after the other.

Finally, in a shabby, third-floor bedroom, they found the man they were seeking.

This was in the small hours of the morning, and two of the room's three occupants were in bed, wearing only their underclothing. The third man, slim and dark and sullenly handsome, opened the door to the knock of Patrolman James A. Conlon.

Glimpsing the officer's uniform, the man who had opened the door made a lunge for the bed. But he wasn't quick enough. Conlon downed him with a flying tackle.

Charging into the room behind Conlon, Lieutenant Drown and Detectives Fleming and Ferrari overpowered the two men in the bed. Under the pillow where the third man had lain, the officers found a big, blue, nickel-plated gun, fully loaded, with old-fashioned, black powder cartridges. And it was of .45 caliber.

Cartridge Found

Admitted owner of the gun was the man who had opened the door. He was Celestine Madeiros. In the pocket of his trousers, thrown over a chair, were found more black-powder cartridges, fitting the revolver.

Rhode Island authorities wanted Madeiros for questioning relative to a number of crimes of violence, but Providence police were willing to let Massachusetts have first chance at the prisoner.

Waiving extradition, Madeiros was taken to a cell in Dedham jail. He and Bedard glimpsed each other momentarily. That was long enough for them to exchange snarls and their bitterest curses.

Madeiros had already made one statement, denying guilt in the Wrentham shooting.

After having seen Bedard in the jail, however, he rattled his cell bars and called Detective Fleming back.

"That lying squealer, Bedard, has spilled his innards by this time," Madeiros said. "I might as well tell you the truth of what happened at Wrentham.

"It was Bedard that planned the hold-up. He'd wanted to pull the job a week or two before, but he lost his nerve. I put it up to me and two other fellows, and we went along with him. We knew he was yellow, so we left him in the car.

"We used a stolen car in the hold-up. Afterward, in the getaway, we switched to Bedard's car, which we had left near Rehoboth.

"The shooting happened when this old guy, the cashier, made a couple of suspicious moves. I thought he was edging toward a gun, so I let him have it. I guess I lost my head. All I was thinking of, when I fired was getting safe out of there with my skin whole."

"Comes Clean"

At variance with Madeiros's alleged confession had been Bedard's original story. He had claimed to have been forced at gun-point into acting as driver of the bandit car.

After Madeiros had talked, however, Bedard decided to "come clean." He made a full confession, pleaded guilty later to a charge of second degree murder and accepted without appeal a sentence of life imprisonment.

His example was followed by James F. Weeks, 28, of Randolph, who was arrested at his home on the day following the capture of Madeiros.

Weeks admitted having entered the bank with Madeiros. He had covered the girl clerks with his gun. Weeks declared, but he had "insisted from the start that there shouldn't be any shooting."

"When I read in the papers that Carpenter was in a dangerous condition," Weeks told Detective Ferrari, "I knelt down in the presence of my wife and two children and I prayed to God that the old man would recover.

"Madeiros was in the house at the time. He laughed at me. 'I hope to hell the old guy croaks before morning,' he said. 'That'll shut his mouth for him.'"

The fourth participant in the Wrentham robbery, though named, was never found.

Bedard and Weeks both having saved their lives at the sacrifice of their liberty, Madeiros, branded as the actual killer, had small choice but to stand trial, plead not guilty and hope for the best.

"No Out for Him"

There was no second degree murder "out" for him. The "rap" he was facing was the chair.

Defended by Attorney Frances J. Squires, Madeiros repudiated his alleged confession. Evidence was introduced purporting to prove him insane, and counsel stressed the prisoner's right to be presumed innocent until proven guilty. On the witness stand, the girl clerks who had faced the guns of the bandits in the bank were not positive in their identifications of Madeiros.

Highly damaging to the defendant, however, was the testimony of Ballistics Expert Van Amburgh, who said that, in his opinion, the murder bullets had been fired from the gun found in Madeiros' possession.

Damaging also was Madeiros' alleged confession, repeated to the jury by Detective Fleming.

After less than two hours of deliberation, including time taken out for a hearty supper, a jury found the defendant guilty of first degree murder.

This was on May 18, 1925.

A few months later, thanks to tireless Defense Attorney Squire, a supreme court decision was handed down, granting Madeiros a new trial on a technicality having to do with infringement of his constitutional rights.

In May, 1926, he faced judge and jury again. This trial was shorter than the first, but its result was the same. The defendant was found guilty of first degree murder.

Between Trials

Between the two trials, however, Madeiros had made acquaintance of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti.

Sacco and Madeiros, white convicts together at Dedham jail, had struck up a friendship.

The prospect of death in the electric chair faced both of them. But in Sacco's behalf, powerful forces were already in motion. Not only were Communists of the world rallying to the Sacco-Vanzetti defense, but an ever-increasing group of intellectuals and liberals of all parties was also contributing influence, prestige, publicity and hard cash to the cause.

Madeiros, on the other hand, was practically friendless.

So for long, however.

He hit on a brilliant expedient. He "confessed" to having participated, with the "Morelli gang" of Providence, in the South Braintree payroll holdup of which Sacco and Vanzetti had been found guilty.

Very vague, Madeiros was, in his identification of his supposed accomplices. He was vaguer still in his description of the scene of the South Braintree crime.

On one point—and one only—he was positive.

Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti hadn't been there!

The rest of his story, from time to time, he changed. Caught in one set of lies, he would tell another set.

But on the innocence of the world-famous Sacco and Vanzetti, he was inflexible.

Reprieves Follow

His reprieves from the death chair, after that, were a matter of course.

The late Judge Webster Thayer, presiding justice at the original Sacco-Vanzetti trial, characterized Madeiros' South Braintree payroll holdup confession as "preposterous."

Denying motions for a new Sacco-Vanzetti trial, Judge Thayer said that the record proved Madeiros "a crook, a thief, a robber, a liar, a gun-runner, a bouncer, a smuggler and a man who has already been convicted of murder and sentenced to death."

He pointed out that Madeiros, in telling of the South Braintree payroll holdup, had said that the money taken was in a "black leather bag," whereas, as a matter of fact, it was in two metal containers.

He pointed out further that Madeiros had failed to remember even the most outstanding of the landmarks at the Sacco-Vanzetti murder scene.

Concluding his exhaustive review of the Madeiros "confession" as relating to the South Braintree payroll holdup, Judge Thayer said:

"Stretching natural feelings of humanity to the limit, this court cannot find that Madeiros has told the truth. This being so, the duty of this court is unmistakably plain, and this court denies these motions for new trials which are based on the confession of Celestine Madeiros and all other affidavits filed in connection therewith."

Not yet discouraged, however, was the Sacco-Vanzetti defense. There were more appeals, more "new evidence," more points of law to go to the Supreme Court, more requests for executive clemency.

Long past, by this time, was September 5, 1926, the original date set for Madeiros's execution.

Chance Seems Slim

More and more slim, as the months passed, seemed the chance that a new Sacco-Vanzetti trial ever would be granted.

Yet, while Sacco and Vanzetti lived, there was hope—and neither Governor Alvan T. Fuller nor Judge Thayer, himself, wished to silence forever the condemned men's would-be witness, Celestine Madeiros.

Madeiros, therefore, shared to the last with Sacco and Vanzetti all the prolonged tortures of uncertainty.

And when the three, on the early morning of August 23, 1927, went one after the other to the chair, Madeiros led the grim procession.

He uttered no "last words." He made no final plea of innocence. And for him there was no public mourning.

The tears were shed, the speeches were made—and the bombs were hurled—in memory of Sacco and Vanzetti.

FIREPROOF CITY COAL PROBE IS OPENED

His company couldn't deliver coal up to specifications at the price the city paid for welfare coal last winter and still stay in business, the first witness at the Boston Finance Commission's so-called "fireproof" coal probe said today.

It was Robert J. McKechnie of Taunton, president of the City Fuel Company, speaking. He was introduced as an expert and said he had been 25 years in the coal business.

McKechnie, answering questions put to him by Commissioner Robert Robinson, said his company had bid $13 a ton for the kind of coal the city wanted, so didn't get the contract.

The companies that did win the contracts had bid from $10.38 to $10.98 a ton, it was brought out. There were four companies thus delivering to welfare and soldiers' aid recipients, Commissioner Robinson said.

It was charged in both the City Council and before the Finance Commissioners that in many instances coal provided by the city was mixed with slate and other non-inflammable material.

There were further charges that welfare recipients had to wait long intervals for delivery, and sometimes the weight was short.

Q—Did any of your customers ever have to wait a month for deliveries? A—Not if they wanted coal.

Q—Two weeks? A—I would think not. As a matter of fact deliveries were generally made within 48 hours; in some instances on the same day.

J. L. Johnson, executive of the Metropolitan Coal Company, was then sworn as another expert.

'Fight Reds' Catholics Are Told

New York, April 15 (US)—Communism was attacked by leaders of Catholic thought as the most dangerous and insidious enemy of Christianity and democracy.

Several thousand Catholic educators, gathered from all parts of the country at the 33d annual meeting of the National Catholic Education Association, were called upon to fight the spread of subversive Communist doctrines and were told:

"Communism is here stronger than ever, filtering into every walk of life, high and low, whispering, enticing, bribing and sabotaging."

This message, the last of three such warnings of the day, was delivered at the Waldorf-Astoria by Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., Ph.D., LL.D., vice-president of Georgetown University and regent of the School of Foreign Service.

INCLUDES PROFESSORS

Included in his vigorous attack were such college professors—the result, he said, of a "cafeteria" system of education—who help the Communist propagandist. He added:

"He (the propagandist) is aided, abetted and comforted in that sinister campaign by a certain type of professor who prostitutes academic freedom to an unacademic conspiracy against the very foundations of Christian morality . . . . Who undermines respect for the traditions of free government by subtle insinuations against the constitution in defense of atheistic Communism."

CALLED MANDARINS

He spoke of the qualities of such professors who have been taken into the administration in Washington. He declared:

"We who live in Washington have observed the intolerance and illiberality of such mandarins when transplanted to positions in the government.

"There is still a remnant of them rushing from department to department, each with his dictator's baton in his briefcase, hoping and planning and scheming for enlarged but centralized power."

Turning again to the direct attack on Communism, Dr. Walsh said:

"Communism is the instiest offspring of the pagan mind. International Communism is waiting in tense expectation today, hoping secretly that its nations will embark again on reciprocal homicide; for well its leaders know that another world war would hasten the end of Christian civilization and usher in a return to the ethics of the jungle.

"That will be Communism's hour to foment Domestic discontent. That will be its opportunity to strike a telling blow at democracy, which it detests."

Grant me a steady hand and watchful eye,
That no man shall be hurt when I pass by.
Thou gavest life, and I pray no act of mine
May take away or mar that gift of thine.
Shelter those, dear Lord, who bear me company.
From the evils of fire and all calamity.
Teach me to use my car for others' need.
Nor miss through love of speed
The beauties of the world; that thus I may
With joy and courtesy go on my way.

Fashionable Audience Pays Tribute To Philadelphia Orchestra

By BETTY ALDEN

ONE HUNDRED ODD musicians and a famous conductor are embarking upon a transcontinental tour which will take them to about 36 of the largest cities and cultural centers in this country, but it does not seem possible that any of their engagements will be more notable, either musically or socially, than was their concert last evening in Symphony Hall . . .

It had been announced that conductor Leopold Stokowski will retire after his present tour, and Boston's music lovers never fail to take advantage of the opportunity of giving a musical celebrity a brilliant send-off . . . So from their positions on the stage of Symphony Hall last evening, the players of the Philadelphia Symphony and Mr. Stokowski faced one of the largest and most brilliantly arrayed social audiences of the season . . .

OLIVIA OSBORNE

Bach and Wagner are, of course, favorite musical fare in Boston, and Mr. Stokowski, true to his reputation of independent handling of his program, had learned this by writing ahead and asking "What do people in your city want to hear?" . . . So the great mass of music lovers were entirely satisfied with his selections and no one who was fortunate enough to be there will ever forget the stirring crescendos or the sweet soft string passages of Wagner's well-loved "The Twilight of the Gods" . . .

As we said before, practically every one of social importance in town was present . . . Among the first we noted were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr. with their son, Charles, 3rd, and sitting directly behind them were Mrs. George Lyman, Jr., who wore a vivid spring print of poppy red with a draw string neckline tied with bows of red chiffon . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Tuckerman, the latter in a trailing gown of grape chiffon, with a pleated and shirred capelet, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Willis, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gardiner Fiske, were seated near each other . . . Also in their vicinity was Miss Katharine Lane and her mother, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, Mrs. Barrett Wendell and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Taft . . .

* * *

Elise Russell Wears Green Mandarin

THE AFFAIR WAS such a success that the members of the ladies Board of Lady Visitors of the Boston Lying In Hospital, which sponsored the concert, will undoubtedly urge Mr. Stokowski to forego his retirement and make a return engagement here next season . . . Mrs. Harold I. Chalifoux, chairman of the group of ladies who arranged the social details of the evening, was very justifiably proud and happy of having been instrumental in raising so much money for the hospital, and she looked very distinguished in a simple gown of black satin with a wide diamond bracelet . . . One of her associates on the committee, Mrs. Richard C. Storey Jr., wore an outfit which combined the two colors most becoming to her lovely blonde complexion, a pale coffee colored chiffon gown with a waist length sable cape . . .

Elise Russell, whose green mandarin coat attracted many admiring glances, attended with her mother, Mrs. Renouf Russell, also a member of the committee which sponsored the concert . . . Mrs. Frank G. Allen, who gave a small dinner party before the concert, wore pale coral orchids to match her sapphire and coral flowered silk gown and sat with Mr. Allen and former Governor and Mrs. Alvan Fuller . . .

After the final encore the famous conductor held an informal reception in the Green Room back stage, to receive the congratulations of his many well wishers and sign autograph after autograph . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Church, Jr., thought they would add an autograph or two to their collection and so did Mrs. Butler Ames who wore a very seasonable frock of emerald green taffeta with a black velvet cape . . .

It would almost be more simple to name some of those who were not there, we saw so many of social distinction . . . Mrs. Robert Gray Dodge wore a gown of transparent silver metallic lace over violet taffeta and blonde Mrs. Everett Morss, Jr., was most outstanding in a gown of crimson crystelle velvet with a long black cape . . . Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker were among the young people present as were Lucy Rantoul Thorndike and Dick, who had a long chat with the John S. Blythes in the lobby and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Francis . . .

* * *

Olga Monks Wears Black Lace Mantilla

FRANCES HOVEY WORE a fetching gown of black net with bands of gardenias holding her puff sleeves in place and matching the flowers in her hair and Sally White Houghton wore a brocaded gown of beige and red and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley . . . Jean Adams in a black cellophane velvet was with her mother, Mrs. Winthrop C. Adams, and two other post debs noted were Olive Perry and Olivia Osborne, both of whom have obviously just left southern beaches behind . . . their deep tans were the envy of many a pale skinned lady present . . .

If you were there and puzzled about the identity of the Spanish looking girl with a black lace mantilla over her locks and draped over the shoulders of a yellow net gown we'll satisfy your curiosity by telling you it was Olga Monks . . . Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge wore a pretty dress of beige chiffon and was with her mother and sister, Mrs. Henry F. Sears and Jean . . .

Still others present were Mrs. John W. Meyers, Mrs. George P. Gardner, Jr., Miss Aimee Lamb, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Wheeler, Mrs. Morton P. Prince, Mrs. Robert Stevenson, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Burrage, Jr., Mrs. Russell Burrage, Dr. and Mrs. James R. Torbert, Anne Torbert, Peggy Hardwick, Mrs. Henry Cabot, Mr. and Mrs. Pierpont Stackpole and Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley with her daughter, Miss Harriet Moseley . . .

Notre Dame Group Plans Frolic

FROM all forecasts, the gala event of the week will be the spring frolic of alumnae of Roxbury Academy of Notre Dame at the Hotel Somerset, Friday evening.

A series of dinners is preceding the affair which benefits the scholarship fund. Mrs. Henry Elliot Foley, general chairman of the soiree, is entertaining a group of guests at dinner at her home in Hyde Park, and Eleanor Campbell Dean of Somerville is also giving a party before bringing her guests on to the dance.

Her dinner guests will include Mary Harrington and her fiance, William Sullivan; Mae Shakan, Margaret Crotty, Otis Perkins, Thomas Harrington, Mary McCarthy, Mortimer Kelley, Mrs. John Howard and Alice Creighton.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Caulfield of Medford are entertaining before the dance. # Delay Adds to Interest in Egg Hunt

A week's postponement of the Secret Agent X-9 Easter Egg Hunt to be held next Saturday morning starting at 10 a. m. at the Franklin Park Playstead has brought hundreds of new members into this amateur detective organization sponsored by the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser.

Scheduled to be held last Saturday morning, rain and cold weather forced the Chief to put the annual event over a week rather than risk the health of his constituents.

Evidently hundreds of youngsters who would have been ineligible last Saturday are thankful for they've since joined the Secret Agent X-9 Club.

There is still time to join before the big search for the 1000 eggs gets underway. Apply to Secret Agent X-9 at 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, and you'll receive your shiny Secret Agent X-9 badge and identification card.

The Chief is rounding up many more features for next Saturday morning. There'll be four hands on hand to furnish music and dozens of celebrities will be present to greet the youngsters.

Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield, Governor James M. Curley, Police Commissioner Eugene McSweeney, Fred Waring, noted orchestra leader, Wally Berger of the Bees are just a few of those who'll be present when the Easter Egg Hunt gets started.

HIDE 1000 EGGS

In the wee hours of Saturday morning Secret Agent X-9 himself will hide 1000 eggs about the Playstead at Franklin Park. One of the eggs will be painted silver, another gold.

The finder of the gold egg will carry off the first prize of $15. The young sleuth tracking down the silver egg will be rewarded with $10.

There will be prizes for the other 998 egg finders, including roller skates, G-Man finger-print sets and boxes of glasses.

Miss Elizabeth Kent Weds In Brookline Church

BRIGHTLY colored spring flowers banked the altar of St. Paul's Church in Brookline for the wedding of Miss Elizabeth Kent, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Rich Kent, to Lorie Tarshis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Tarshis of Toronto, Canada, this afternoon.

The bride's gown was of ivory satin trimmed with lace from the wedding gowns of her great grandmother and her grandmother. Her veil was of old English heirloom lace and she carried a bouquet of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Miss Gertrude V. V. Franchot, of Cambridge was Miss Kent's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore a dress of aquamarine crepe, with a natural colored leghorn hat, and carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers.

The Rev. Arthur C. Lichtenberger performed the ceremony and Mr. Kent gave his daughter in marriage. Robert B. Bryce of Toronto acted as best man for Mr. Tarshis and the usher corps included, Oliver Andrews, cousin of the bride; Hollister Kent of Brookline, Charles R. Cherington of New York, George Davol of Brookline, Geoffrey W. Lewis of Cambridge, Paul W. Kimball of Milton, Robert W. Kennedy of Cambridge and S. P. Franchot of New York.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at 17 Hawthorn road in Brookline, the home of the bride's parents. Among those who came from out of town to offer their congratulations were Mrs. Henry Edgwood Frick, aunt of the bride, and Miss Olicia and Miss Barbara Frick, all of Montclair, N. J.; Miss Mary K. Boyd of Columbia, S. C.; Miss Elizabeth Putnam of Washington, D. C.

CHAPTER 21

Luana started at the sound of footsteps coming up the stairs that led from the street.

Hastily she switched the light off. Let Jimmy knock. Let him go away, disappointed!

Yvonne's shrill voice came through the transom over the door.

"Mon Dieu, I cannot find my key, Armand. Go down to the janeitor. He will let us in."

So it was not Jimmy. It was the French girl and her sweetheart who expected her to be gone . . .

Luana opened the door to them. Yvonne made startled eyes at her. "Mai foi, you here?" she exclaimed ungraciously. "You tell me three morning you have an appointment?"

"I have. I'm leaving directly."

"Come in, Armand." Yvonne seemed relieved.

Luana went into the cupboard in the bathroom where her things were kept. She put on her hat and coat and gloves.

On her way out through the living room, Armand, who was alone in the room for a minute, blocked her passage.

He said, in a voice that was purposely low, so that Yvonne in the bedroom might not overhear him: "You are cruel, Miss Walters. You always go out when I come in. I ask you, is that fair?"

"Certainly it is. I have an engagement," replied Luana tartly.

She hated the way Armand looked at her, loathed the touch of his soft, womanish hands, his perfumed hair.

"Be kind. Im mad about you," he whispered. "Have dinner with me tomorrow night. The Stafford walk at 7 o'clock?"

His furtive eyes went from her to the open door of Yvonne's bedroom, as though warning her to be silent. What a sneak he was!

Shaking her head in refusal, she pushed past him just before the suspicious and jealous Yvonne appeared in the doorway.

The moment Luana had gone, the French girl spat out: "What were you just asking her?"

Armand smiled blandly albeit soothingly. Yvonne was a hellcat!

"I was telling her the boss wants her to be at the opening luncheon of the St. Regni Roof tomorrow at one sharp. She's to wear the new plaid taffetas we've adapted from Lanvin. She's to lunch with the press agent."

But Yvonne was not satisfied. She knew the little weaknesses of her Armand. They had an argument.

It was interrupted by a knock on the outer door. "Sst! Do not open. It may be Luana come back. I don't want her," whispered Yvonne sulkily.

A Visitor!

It had not been Luana, however, but Jimmy Randolph, who finally went away.

Thereafter ensued two hours of Armand's best endeavors before Yvonne was restored to normalcy.

On Armand's departure, Yvonne carefully locked the door. A plan had been forming in her mind. She thought that now would be a good time to put it into execution.

Under the divan Luana kept a locked suitcase. Prowling through the pockets of one of Luana's suits that hung in the clothes closet in the bathroom, Yvonne had found a little key that morning.

The suit was still there. Also the key which Yvonne would now fit to the suitcase . . . she drew it from under the couch.

The lock turned, revealing some underclothes neatly tied together with silk ribbons. Yvonne was disappointed.

She slid a hand under the silk garments.

Only more clothes . . . ?

Stay! Here was paper . . . a letter?

She scanned the envelope, delighted to find a man's handwriting and a Hollywood postmark!

Luana's mysterious admirer from the Movie City! Maybe now she would get a "line" on her. . . . Get something "on" her, to tell Armand . . .'

She drew the letter out. Her eyes widened in amazement as she read . . .

"Dear Elizabeth—This is to let you know that I have not yet been able to bring about the annulment, but it is under way. Be assured that your father is doing everything to remove the stigma brought upon us.

"Trust that I am doing my best for the sake of the family name. I am glad you are occupied. Continuous work is a great steadier. I pray for your success and your future."

The initials: "J. McC." ended this strange letter.

"Annulment? Stigma?" repeated Yvonne, clasping the paper tightly, her eyes shining with excitement.

* * *

As on the principle that troubles never come singly, so is it with misunderstandings.

Jimmy had been working against time on the afternoon that Mrs. Vandaveer had walked in on him in his studio. A commission from an advertising agency that would net him $30 had kept him all day at his drawing board. His clock stopped at four, but in his preoccupation he was not to notice that until much later.

Before he met Luana at half past five, the work must be finished. The agency closed at 6, but up to 7 o'clock he could be admitted through a side-door by the cleaning woman, and leave his work on the supervisor's desk.

The agency was on the West Side in the 40's, not far from the restaurant where he would take Luana to dine.

Luana sometimes was late, detained at the shop a matter of 15 or 20 minutes.

But he had leeway up to 7 o'clock for the delivery of his drawing to the advertising agency, and so he need not worry.

He glanced at the clock. Only 4! He had a clear hour yet in which to finish.

He worked on and on. It struck him that the light was failing early.

He put the final stroke to his drawing as the buzzer sounded in the studio.

Who could this be? Perhaps someone from the agency, with further work?

He hoped that this was so. Since meeting Luana, money was the one commodity he needed.

Not that she expected you to entertain her lavishly. She was not quite thoughtful in money matters, but seemed to take more real pleasure in small, quaint eating places than in the elaborate.

Curious how he had begun to feel that a day on which he did not see Luana was a day that was colorless, despite his work!

He pressed the button that was directly inside the door. Presently he heard light, quick footfalls coming up the wooden stairs.

Leaning over the balustrade, he looked down on a jaunty green hat.

Could it be Luana who, he thought, had left her work early to come right here and surprise him? His heart thumped with excitement.

But it was not Luana. The low, throaty tones of Mrs. Joel Vandaveer hailed him. Then he remembered, vaguely, her suggestion of stopping in on him some afternoon and see his work.

But his appointment with Luana? What was he to do about it?

He reflected that there must be at least 15 minutes left before he need leave his studio.

This woman was important to Luana, and she had been very nice to him, too.

He received her politely, apologizing for the untidy condition of his room, since he had been working all day.

"But it's just the way it ought to look! So atmospheric! Oh, it does remind me so of my darling Paris, of my good friends in the Quarter!"

Before coming here she had had a double brandy in her bedroom—so as to get into the spirit of Bohemia, she told herself.

A Woman's Praise

"Do, do show me what you've been doing!" she insisted, under her thick lashes her green eyes taking in the shabby room at a sweep.

Here was an infinitely more deserving case than Ramon! Here was someone infinitely more attractive than Ramon! But one must go easy with that queer Southern pride of his!

With the fluid motion of a panther she went swiftly to the drawing-board. Her astonished gaze rested on an interior sketch of a bathroom . . .

Awkwardly, apologetically, young Randolph grinned.

"This isn't my regular work. This is a pot boiler."

"A what?" She raised her green gaze from the board to the young man's face, and thought whimsically: From plumbing to Adonis! He was certainly very good-looking.

"I get occasional jobs from the advertising agencies. One can't live on air in New York, can one?" he said brusquely, for he was embarrassed.

"Of course not. Genius must live. But do, do show me your real work—your architectural designs, Mr. Randolph. I'm so thrilled about it."

"But these are exquisite creations. Such beauty of design! Why, Mr. Randolph, it reminds me of a tour with Joel that I once took, of all the divine old cathedrals of Italy! Why, you've captured their very spirit!"

There was the young architect of their Palm Beach mansion, down in Florida. He had bought her a few things besides cupolas and patios, till even Joel had objected.

But that was 16 years ago. So much water had run under the bridge since.

They talked of the forthcoming New York Exposition.

"A little more of the French influence is what you need, my dear Mr. Randolph. Your work is splendid. So full of originality and force and conception. But a few months in Paris would give a certain mellowness, a nuance—"

She was uncertain of these phrases, but probably he would not know the difference"

Listen, World!

-:- By Elsie Robinson

You wouldn't willingly permit your arm to be bandaged until it rotted or withered. Nor would you allow a healthy leg to be wantonly amputated. Least of all would you let your eyes be blinded.

Yet you possess an organ infinitely more valuable and powerful than leg or arm or eye—an organ which might change your whole life for you. Yet you let it lie idle or suffer through neglect.

Elsie Robinson

I am talking about your IMAGINATION.

"But Imagination, that's just the ability to make believe," you say. "Imagination won't get you anywhere—"

You're wrong! Imagination can yank you out of any depths—lift you up to any heaven—set you firm on any throne—and open your heart and mine to all the wisdom and wonder and beauty in the universe.

Knowledge is a good thing. Industry is a good thing. But Imagination is a magic thing—a miracle maker.

Did you ever read Bernard Shaw's play, "Saint Joan"? There she was, this husky, 17-year-old girl, come from Domremy to save her nation's king — demanding that Robert Daudricourt give her horse and armor—quoting her "voices" as divine backing. There she stood, a child—so ignorant she could neither read nor write—unsure of her own age and surname.

But she was sure that God spoke in those "voices" and she had no doubt as to how her orders came.

"They come from God," said Joan.

"They come from your imagination," stormed Robert Daudricourt.

"Of course. That is how the messages of God come to us," calmly answered Joan of Arc.

That is how God's messages come. Not through the flesh. Not from the written page. But through your imagination — through that ability which the imagination gives you to project yourself into other lives, to suffer and rejoice, toil and rebel with other spirits, to go upon crusades and adventures where your mortal feet may never follow.

Nothing on earth can ever bind a man who has developed his imagination.

Nothing on earth can ever free a man who hasn't.

Often you rebel against your life. Cry out that it's too narrow. Pity yourself for your colorless destiny. Often you envy those who seem lifted to more glorious heights.

But you have the power within you to lift yourself to any height you may wish to reach. You have the power to feel the deepest sorrow, satisfy the fiercest hunger, comfort the grossest humiliation that may ever come to you. You have this power in your own imagination.

Nor need it cost you a penny to use this power. No matter how poor you are, or how obscure or ignorant—no matter how you may have failed or blundered—you may begin using this power by rules any child can follow.

Stop thinking about yourself and your life. Begin to think about the other fellow. Begin to force your imagination up and out into the wider life exactly as you would force your body from a narrow cell into a larger room. Begin to wonder and question—begin to think how it feels to be somebody else—how it feels to do something else.

If you can go out into the street. Any street. Look at the faces. Any faces. As you look, let your imagination enter those eyes, steal into those hearts—make you one with those strange spirits.

"Your Figure, Madame!"

Youth Needs Material For Normal Growth

By IDA JEAN KAIN

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

"MY young daughter is very round-shouldered, and although I constantly remind her to straighten up, it seems to be useless. Will she outgrow round shoulders?"

This is a typical letter from a posture-conscious mother whose problem—as your letters tell me—is shared by many of you.

Stooped shoulders and similar posture defects are not outgrown unless the cause is removed, and no amount of verbal correction has any lasting value.

In fact, continually calling a young girl's attention to awkward or slumped posture may force her into a rigid, self-conscious posture which is equally bad.

You can help your daughter, however, and should make every effort to do so. Health and a naturally erect carriage are very closely related, and stooped shoulders may be a sign of low vitality. Take inventory of your daughter's health habits in eating, sleeping and exercise.

She should have at least one pint of milk daily, and if underweight she should have a quart. A health-building menu also includes the optimum list of protective foods: eggs, fresh fruits, and vegetables, whole grain cereals, whole grain bread.

Youth needs material for normal growth, for the development of strong bones and muscles, and for effervescent vitality. In youth the highest vitality accompanies weight that is slightly above the accepted standards.

Instead of calling attention to stooped shoulders, remind her that the world's loveliest mannequins average five feet seven inches in height, and that Radio City's exquisitely poised precision dancers, the Rockettes, average five feet six and one-half inches in height. That should encourage a growing girl to make the most of her inches!

If correction exercises are needed, have your daughter use exercises one and two in the leaflet "General Exercises—to Keep You Trim and Fit as a Fiddle." The earlier the practice of good posture is begun, the more natural and graceful it becomes.

In addition to adequate food and rest, she needs plenty of healthful outdoor activity to strengthen and tone the muscles of her body, so that she unconsciously and effortlessly holds herself erect. Encourage activity in the open air and sunshine.

These health measures are invaluable in the development of good posture in youth. Sometimes, however, young girls shoot up so suddenly that they are surprised at their own growth and feel awkward and ungainly. To conceal a height that seems towering to them, they adopt a stooping posture. Teach your daughter that height can be an asset.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Is Snobbishness in Youth An Admirable Rather Than Offensive Trait?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Snobbishness is usually an offensive trait. Too often those who practice it are so lacking in character and ability that their conduct becomes disgusting to thinking people.

But there is a mild snobbishness that is almost admirable. I refer to the good judgment which causes wise girls and boys to avoid the companionship of persons whose reputations are not of the best.

"Birds of a feather flock together" is an old and trite saying. Yet, there is a good deal of truth in it. One cannot associate with gangsters without forfeiting the respect of law-abiding folks. Neither can one make chums of drunkards and win praise for sobriety.

It is always a good plan for a young man or woman to seek companions who are clean morally and mentally. Evil associations are the certain road to failure and future unhappiness.

These remarks, addressed to all boys and girls, are intended especially for the young woman whose letter wins today's five-dollar award. This is what she writes:

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Two years ago I met a girl. We became friends, and have been constantly together since. Although I know she is not of my class, we have a lot in common and have wonderful times.

Four months ago I met a young man with whom I had the good fortune to fall in love. We are engaged and our marriage is set for June.

Only one thing causes me and my fiance to quarrel. That thing is my association with the girl I have mentioned. Whenever I go out with her, my husband-to-be threatens to break our engagement and says he will never marry a girl whose friends are of doubtful reputation.

Here is my problem: Shall I give up the man I love or the girl I like? It is apparent I cannot have both.

I admit the girl has been involved in situations that are better not discussed. She has little love for convention. But she does have an intense devotion to loyalty. And were I in need tomorrow, I am sure every cent she has would be mine.

Do you think I would make a mistake by becoming the bride of a young man whose intolerance prevents his seeing a little good in one whom the whole town condemns? MISS W.

MY DEAR GIRL:

If I were you I'd go out more with the man I loved and less with the girl I admired.

No matter how bad a person might be, there is always a little good in him. And it is cruel to deliberately insult a man or woman who "has little love for convention" will destroy your reputation just as surely as a cancer would your body.

If you intend to marry a man, in June, your time belongs to him. This should be one of the happiest times of your life. You should endeavor to make these weeks preceding your marriage so real and beautiful that you will remember them as long as you live.

As I read your letter and study your problem, one question confronts me. It is this: Can this girl be actually in love with the boy she intends to marry? Somehow, I am inclined to think your love is not all it should be.

But, regardless of how great or small your love is, you would be wise in seeing less of this girl whom you say the whole town condemns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Not long ago you advised a young couple to marry on a small salary and fight on together. I don't agree, May I tell my story?

We were both working and had a little money. So, bravely, we married in the middle of the depression. We had great plans—a home, children and a bank account.

When we returned from our honeymoon, my husband lost his job. A few weeks later I was discharged from mine. Then began the decline. No work for either of us. No money. Blasted dreams. And, finally, frequent quarrels.

We have continued struggling along for four long years. (They seem like 40.) We still have each other, although love has almost flown out the window.

It would be too long a story to give you all the details. But I honestly believe it is wrong to advise young men and women to marry, unless they have at least two thousand dollars in the bank and have an agreement with their employer that they will not be discharged. MRS. S. E.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

MY DEAR FRIEND:

The Communists have their Utopia. The Socialists and Fascists have theirs. And you have yours. But, sad though it may be, not one will work when put into practice.

Suppose every young man and woman insisted on having $2,000 in the bank before considering marriage, how many weddings do you think there would be in a year? Almost none. That's the answer.

And where is there an employer who will guarantee a young man and woman contemplating marriage that they can have their jobs no matter what happens? You couldn't get a sane man to make such a pledge, could you?

Dear friend, if you will forget your regrets for a few hours and study the biographies of the really successful, you will find that men like Henry Ford, Thomas Edison and Calvin Coolidge had far less than $2000 when they married.

The fact you refuse to face is that even though you had remained single, both you and your husband would be jobless now. You are blaming too much on marriage.

If you take a tip from an old lady who knows, you will quarrel less and think more.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

The 8th WOMAN

GETS MORE OUT OF LIFE

Eight million women have had to always consider the time of month in making an engagement — avoiding any strenuous activities on certain days.

Today, a million escape this regular martyrdom because they have accepted the aid of Midol. A tiny tablet, white and tasteless, is the secret of the eighth woman's poise and comfort at this time.

Are you a martyr to regular pain? Must you favor yourself, and save yourself, certain days of every month? Midol might change all this. Might have you your confident self, leading your regular life, free from periodic pain and discomfort.

The smallest degree of relief you might get from Midol means a great deal to your comfort.

Midol is taken any time, preferably just before the expected pain. This precaution often avoids the pain altogether. Yet, Midol is not a narcotic.

Get these tablets in a trim little aluminum case — they are usually right out on the toilet goods counter. Or, a card addressed to Midol, 170 Varick St., New York, brings a trial box in plain wrapper.

Beauty for Your Fingertips

POSED BY IRENE BENNETT

New Trio of Smart Nail Aids Includes a Herbal Tonic for Dry Cuticles

By ARLINE GOULD

ARE you familiar with the old beauty proverb that has been handed down to us from the East? "A woman should have three things red—lips, cheeks and fingernails."

The appeal of fresh, vivid lips and glistening fingertips goes even deeper than color—back to the very elements that foster the natural moisture of youth.

When lips lose their ripe gleam—the very luster of enchantment—and become parched and dry, we lose but little time in treating them to soothing emollients and correctives. But when nails rebel at harsh polishes and still harsher treatment—what do we do? Nothing at all.

Is it any wonder then that broken cuticles, hangnails and brittleness are common enough complaints. To overcome these handicaps and also to promote nail health as well as beauty, a leading cosmetician has just brought forth a series of new nail preparations.

One of these is a brand new "nail groom"—a polish with a glistening oily quality that gives nails a beautiful high luster and at the same time keeps them from breaking or becoming dry.

It comes in four fashionable shades—each shade designed to perfectly match the color of your lips and cheek rouge. The enamel flows over the nails with smoothness and ease, is decidedly lasting and does not peel, chip or change color from one application to the next.

The other is a new oily polish remover—a remover that has many advantages over the old type of preparation. For one thing, it does not chill the nails nor give the icy sensation which is so unpleasant. Instead of drying the nails, it really nourishes them, and its fine oils brighten and actually "polish" the nails, leaving behind a lovely sheen and exquisite texture.

The last of the trio is a new herbal nail tonic. Its healthful herbal juices and oils are good food for nails—and toenails, too, for that matter. Massaged into the fingertips, this tonic promotes luxurious, tapering fingertips.

It's a marvelous corrective for brittle, dull or dry nails, as well as for discolorations on nails—a really splendid cuticle reconditioner. It also heals broken cuticle and hangnails and encourages the growth of nails.

The woman whose nails are the easy-to-break, hard-to-grow-long type will welcome this new herbal nail tonic as well as the new nail groom and oily polish remover—all of which are specifically designed to promote nail health as well as nail beauty.

If you would like to know the names of these three new nail preparations, which are sold separately or boxed together in an attractive ivory and red-trim package, call Arline Gould, Liberty 4000, or write to her at the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Opening Pre-Emptive Bids

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

One reason I like opening pre-emptive bids is that they so often arouse excitement.

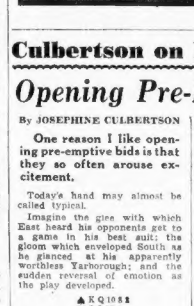
Today's hand may almost be called typical.

Imagine the glee with which East heard his opponents get to a game in his best suit; the gloom which enveloped South as he glanced at his apparently worthless Yarborough; and the sudden reversal of emotion as the play developed.



The bidding:

| West | North | East | South |
|---|---|---|---|
| 5 ♣ (1) | 3 N T (2) | Double | 4 ♡ (3) |
| Pass | Pass | Double (4) | Pass |
| Pass | Pass | | |

West, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

(1)—Shaded because of defensive weakness.

(2)—North has to take action, and three notrump is one of the recommended strong bids. Four clubs could not be severely criticized.

(3)—Recognizing the fact that North's bid asks for a takeout, South rescues immediately.

(4)—Rubbing his hands.

West opened the King of clubs, dummy ruffing. The King of spades was next led and East won with the Ace. In order to cut down the number of ruffs, East promptly led the two high trumps and continued with a third round.

Dummy won and the Queen of spades was cashed after which a low spade-ruff by South established the suit. Dummy was then entered with a diamond and from this point on East was helpless. The spades were first led and then the diamonds.

If East ruffed at any point, South would overruff and re-enter the dummy with a diamond to continue to run good tricks. If East failed to ruff every one of dummy cards was a winner.

There is probably no moral to this little tale, except that in the future the player who sat East will probably be super-careful with his penalty doubles when his partner has opened with a pre-emptive bid.

Given in Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON
CHAPTER 624

WHEN Dicky and I entered the house he brought to a head my fear concerning Edith by the haste with which he left me to search for his sister, Harriet.

"You'll excuse me, won't you?" he said. "I really must see her right away. I suppose there's no use asking you to go back to your room and go to sleep for a while."

He wanted to get me out of the way of any possible unpleasantness! I read that in his anxious voice and eyes, and pretended acquiescence in order to ease his mind.

"There's Lil now, just going into the kitchen," he said. "Wait. I'll get her for you."

But when Lillian came up to me, and I saw the amused twinkle in her eye, I knew that I should not have long to wait before I heard the whole story.

"In curiosity slowly murdering the pussy?" she murmured. "Well! We'll just stop that execution right now. I'm supposed to ask you what you want of me, and then to stick closer than a leech for the next half hour or so. So come upstairs to your room, and I'll give first aid by spilling the beans Dicky just dished out."

"I won't even say I ought not to listen," I said, linking my arm in hers and walking with her to the stairway. "But I do want to ask you one question, which I dared not put to Dicky. Do you think it is safe to leave Edith alone in the bungalow just now?"

"Do you think I'd be here gassing to you, if I didn't think it was safe?" Lillian retorted.

We had reached my door by the time she had finished, and when she had followed me in, she closed and locked the door.

LILLIAN TELLS THE STORY

"Of course, you're wondering what Dicky's hunting his sister for, and your guess is probably the truth. Here's the dope.

"Edie has wept herself into a nervous, jittery headache — I'll wager the weeping was done on the Dicky-bird's reluctant chest—trust Edie not to miss a bet like that—and she'll have to have some sort of headache remedy or nerve sedative to get her in shape for the drive back to Marvin.

"Oh! but, Lillian," I said, sitting bolt upright, "if she is in that condition, she must not drive back to Marvin today."

"Do you think I'm going to let you spoil this heaven-sent opportunity for Dicky to get away from that partnership—and his partner?"

Sore Throat Dangers

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Colds and inflammations of the upper air passages are exceedingly common. There is always an increase of sore throats, laryngitis, pharyngitis or bronchitis when there are sudden and unexpected changes in weather.

In many instances one of these conditions can be traced to neglect of a simple head cold.

That form of sore throat which the doctors call "pharyngities" starts as a head cold. Then the throat feels stiff and dry. At times the glands of the neck become swollen and painful to touch. Swallowing is difficult and fever is present.

As a rule an inflamed throat is associated with some annoying type of cough, particularly when the parts are uncomfortably dry. Sometimes swollen red spots are seen on the back wall of the throat.

It is unfortunate that many persons neglect sore throat, regarding it as a trivial ailment. I venture to say that if early attention were given, there would be fewer cases of serious infection of the lower portion of the breathing apparatus.

CONTEST NEAR END

Pixilated Closes Tonight

Midnight tonight is the closing time for "Pixilated" Contest entries, so if you haven't already submitted your answer to the question, "What do you do to help you think?" you'd better hurry up!

There's still time to explain, in not less than 20 words, your own personal method of solving the difficulty Gary Cooper finds himself in, as the hero of "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town."

The picture, co-starring Jean Arthur, and now playing at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, contains a scene wherein "Mr. Deeds" is described as being "pixilated" because he blows a tuba to help him think.

What do YOU do to help you think?

For the best answer submitted to this question the Boston Evening American is offering a first prize of $10.

OTHER CASH PRIZES

Second prize will be $5; third, $3; fourth, $2, and $1 each for the next five. Twenty-five tickets to either Loew's State or Orpheum Theaters will be presented to the remainder of the winners.

Today's mail brought still more original and amusing entries.

Miss Virginia Ross of 111 Union street, Brighton, presents her formula for thinking in the following entry:

"The thing I do to help me think, is to put my fingers to my ears, and close my eyes."

Then there is Michael J. Settin, Jr., of 138 Templeton street, Dorchester, who declares:

"When confronted with a quizzical problem requiring thought, I have a habit of clasping my hands tightly together."

Mrs. Lillian Ness, of 6 Waumbeck street, Roxbury, sends in the following:

"I tangle my fingers in a length of string, and then with one tricky pull, quickly untangle them."

EIGHT AIDS HER

Mrs. J. Nardelli, of Box 124, Canton, writes:

"When I get 'Pixilated,' I sit down and write the figure 8 on a piece of paper several times."

Do YOU think YOU have a better solution than any of these?

If so, hurry and write it down.

Address your entry to "Pixilated" Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

And don't forget—entries must be in no later than midnight tonight.

Lindy Case Secrets

Death Walks Last Mile With Bruno

This is the tenth and concluding chapter of the inside story of the "crime of the century," in which Lou Wedemar, a star reporter, who covered the case, describes Governor Hoffman's investigation and the last days of Bruno Richard Hauptmann.

By LOU WEDEMAR

(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Trenton, N. J., April 15 (US)—I found the Governor of New Jersey in a huge suite of rooms at the Hotel New Yorker, in Manhattan. Surrounded by special investigators, scientists, fakers and crack-pots, he was secretly "studying" the evidence in the Lindbergh case.

It was a remarkable scene. The Governor, in his shirt-sleeves, had just concluded reading for the third time the entire transcript of testimony at Hauptmann's trial. And he had checked off point after point which he considered doubtful.

In another room were two women, private detectives. In a third was a handwriting expert. In a fourth was a wood expert, studying samples of pine similar to that in the kidnap ladder.

Parker Is There

The governor and his "inquiry cabinet," including three secretaries, three motor vehicle inspectors, a lawyer, and Ellis Parker, so-called "country Sherlock Holmes," began to assort the day's mail. There were "tips" on the case from all parts of the world—fake confessions, allegations against innocent men and women, information about Hauptmann, and even statements that the Lindbergh baby was not dead, but alive.

The handwriting expert came in and reported:

"I'd say this writing was closer to the ransom notes than Hauptmann's."

The wood expert came in:

"That 'Rail 16' was 'planted' in Hauptmann's attic. It is a different thickness and different grain from the rest of the wood."

One of the detectives reported:

"I have information that Isidor Fisch tried to sell 'hot money.'"

A scientist, who had developed a new fingerprint-finding process, was ushered in, and reported:

"There are 500 fingerprints on the kidnap ladder, but Hauptmann's is not among them. A lot of the fingerprints have not been identified yet. I am working on them."

Ellis Parker announced:

"I know the real kidnaper. I have been watching him for years. If I could get him alone and question him, I could get a confession from him—and save Hauptmann."

Fooled Hoffman

That was the manner in which Governor Hoffman was led to believe that he and his representatives could "break" the Lindbergh case, going over clues overlooked by the original investigators, or discarded by them as useless.

Several lines of inquiry seemed to be promising—and to the governor they indicated that Hauptmann might have had an accomplice in some other criminal. So the governor went to Mrs. Hauptmann and questioned her. He emerged convinced she had no knowledge of the crime.

Finally, the investigators' suspicions centered on one Paul Wendel, an eccentric lawyer who had once visited Parker with a "clue" to the Lindbergh case. Wendel was seized by a group of men, questioned, and wrote out an incredibly fantastic "confession," in which he said the baby died accidentally. Then he was hidden away in a New Jersey institution.

Answers Missing

Meanwhile, Hauptmann was retaining the same calm bearing that he had shown since his arrest. Convinced, he said, that "something" would save him from the electric chair, he spent day after day reading the record of his trial, and conferring with his attorney on the possibilities of winning a second trial.

He received frequent visits from his wife, who assured him, "The governor will not let them execute you. He is convinced that you did not kill the baby."

Again the execution date neared. The governor's investigation was not complete. He had not obtained the answers to scores of questions about the kidnaping.

On the night of March 31, Hauptmann was made ready for the electric chair. He was told there would be no further action by the governor, unless he "confessed." The former German machine-gunner insisted he had told all he knew.

His head was shaved, and he was told to say his last prayers. And then, five minutes before he was scheduled to die, he was notified that the execution had been postponed two or three days.

Wendel Arrested

Wendel had been taken into custody in Trenton, and a grand jury was investigating his "confession." If Wendel was indicted, Justice Trenchard might be forced to delay the execution.

But, as suddenly as it had arisen, Hauptmann's last hope faded. Wendel repudiated his confession, and said it had been forced from him by threats of torture. The grand jury dropped the case.

Once more the press gathered at the State prison, and a few marched through its gates to the execution chamber. Among them were several who had been in Hopewell that stormy night more than four years earlier. Few of them expected the execution actually to occur; most expected another delay.

At 7 o'clock on the night of April 3, Governor Hoffman was still deliberating a new reprieve. He begged the attorney-general to agree that the Wendel development and other unsettled phases of the case warranted him in postponing Hauptmann's death.

But Wilentz stood firm. He told the governor he had no legal power to intervene. The governor announced there would be no reprieve.

And, shortly before nine o'clock, Hauptmann was put to death in the electric chair.

N. E. BUILDERS TO SHOW NEW EXHIBITS

The twenty-third annual convention and exhibit of the New England Building Officials Conference will be held for three days at the Hotel Statler starting Monday.

Exhibits this year will show air conditioning equipment, brass products, glass bricks, structural hardware, lally columns, prefabricated homes, red cedar shingles, steel piping, structural gypsum, termite prevention methods, waterproof concrete slabs and a picturesque display of photographs, engravings and plans of modern structures by prominent New England architects.

H. Daland Chandler, past-president of the Boston Society of Architects, local chapter of the American Institute of Architects, in speaking of the 1936 convention said:

"The unfortunate recent flood disaster creates an opportunity for splendid service to the community and, in wise planning, of real progress.

"I believe that we are standing on the threshold of great activity in the building industry.

"Architects, engineers, contractors, material manufacturers, realtors, together with the government agents such as the building officials, can find in this conference a chance to co-operate in a well-considered program, not alone for rebuilding the stricken areas along safe and sound lines, but for extending along a wide front general building operations, prompted by private enterprise, that are so necessary and that have been so long delayed."

Art Treasure Ship On Gibraltar Reef

Gibraltar, April 15 (US)—Laden with Chinese art treasures, valued at millions of dollars, the British steamer Ranpura, aground northwest of Gibraltar harbor, was stranded as British naval tugs failed to refloat her.

The ship and its precious cargo were understood to be in no immediate danger. The refloating operations will be resumed today. Passengers and their luggage were landed.

The art objects are being returned to China from London, where they were recently exhibited.

'GYP' BULB COSTLY TO AUTOIST

GOODWIN DRIVE BARES FOREIGN PRODUCTS

Cheap foreign automobile lights disappeared from the shelves and counters of Greater Boston dealers today, following Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin's statement condemning such lights in the interests of highway safety.

Every night registry inspectors have been stopping cars on Massachusetts roads that have only one light. Nearly without exception, inspectors have found these bulbs to be of cheap foreign make. Already 81 car owners have been suspended for three days because on three occasions they were caught with one light out.

Only last night, on the 30-mile stretch of road from Marlboro to Boston, registry inspectors stopped 17 cars with one light out.

DRIVE COMMENDED

The "Buy American" slogan, brought into light by Registrar Goodwin yesterday, was commended along with Goodwin's drive today by local General Electric officials.

"It's a very fine move on the part of the registrar," declared C. C. Walker, General Electric executive.

"The quality of an automobile light bulb has a direct bearing on equipment of today. In fact, the quality means safety in an auto lamp.

"Unsuspecting customers might save five cents on a bulb, but for that small saving they sacrifice quality which is so valuable to their safety."

SERIOUS COMPETITION

The Boston Evening American learned that the sale of foreign made lamps, principally from Japan, have become serious competitive factors to domestic manufacturers.

Said Walker:

"We have felt this so-called 'gyp' bulb competition to a great extent. It is quite serious. There is nothing we can do about it, of course, except to try to educate the public through national advertising and displays."

Officials of the General Electric Company pointed out the various imperfections in foreign made light bulbs that are sold over the counter every day to people not aware of the greater margin of profit for the dealer.

"Mis-aimed beams from foreign made bulbs are very dangerous for night driving," declared Walker. "The lighting results from cheap bulbs are about the same as for a lamp with a crooked base.

"It is not uncommon for these cheap bulbs to distort the light rays before they reach the reflector and in this way reduce the light beam intensity.

"Many of these foreign made lamps have a crooked base which cannot be focused properly. The result is a distorted and misaimed light beam which is glaring to the approaching driver.

Left to right: the domestic automobile light bulb which is advocated for durability and safety and the foreign bulb, made in Japan, which has become the latest subject of Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank W. Goodwin's drive against faulty equipment to insure safety on the highways. Goodwin is an ardent believer of the "Buy American" policy.

Arlington Legion To Dedicate Home

Arlington Post, 39, A. L., will dedicate its new home at 370 Massachusetts avenue on Sunday afternoon, April 19. A military parade will precede the exercises, starting from Appleton street and Massachusetts avenue at 3 p. m., with Commander Frederick L. Reynolds as chief marshal, and Timothy J. Buckley, as chief of staff.

G. E. EXECUTIVE SEES SAFETY AT STAKE

It spells, naturally, the lighting performance of any well-designed headlamp."

OTHER BULBS

In Boston today it was almost an impossibility to purchase foreign made auto lamps. Yet practically every other kind of bulb—from flashlight to floor lamp type—could be purchased bearing the stamp, "Japan."

One dealer located near Haymarket square aptly put it:

"You won't find any Japanese auto bulbs around now that Goodwin has started this drive."

VET UNITS PLAN BONUS PAY AID

Washington, April 15 (US)—Chiefs of the three veterans' organizations today had pledged cooperation with the Treasury and Veterans' administration in identifying veterans for payment of cash on bonus bonds to be issued June 15.

At a conference with Secretary Morgenthau, the veterans' leaders also were told that the Treasury would deliver the bonus bonds as quickly as possible.

They were informed that Morgenthau had asked Congress for legislation authorizing him to designate 300 post offices throughout the country as disbursing offices where the bonds may be redeemed by ex-soldiers.

Kiwanis' to Stage Big Easter Fete

What is expected to be the largest Easter Party ever held in Greater Boston is to be staged next Saturday afternoon at Fallon Field, Roslindale, under the auspices of the Kiwanis Clubs of Roslindale and West Roxbury.

The program includes dance numbers by Monart and Phineas Bates schools, band numbers by school bands of Roslindale and West Roxbury, a pageant by Girl Scouts, an Easter Egg Rolling, and a grand parade. More than 10,000 packages of candy, 500 packages of gum, 2000 candy "kisses" and many other gifts for children are included.

Hagood in Chicago To Take Command

Chicago, April 15 (US)—Major General Johnson Hagood, restored to active service by President Roosevelt after his "punishment" for criticism of Works Progress Administration spending, has arrived in Chicago to assume command of the Sixth Corps Area on May 2.

The general announced that he had, with the knowledge of the President and the secretary of war, accepted a "temporary" position as efficiency engineer with Sears, Roebuck & Co., Chicago mail order house.

New York DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, April 15 The pronounced and continuing vogue of Elsa Maxwell as a society party tosser is among the oddest of the metropolitan frivols. She is a sort of trained governess for the adult rich—showing them how to relax and frolic with the skip of a Maypole dance.

O. O. McIntyre

Booming, bouncing, bobbing, and San Francisco born, she is as vital as an entire hockey team from a girls' school. Whenever she arrives it is with a yipee and shooting from both hips.

Just now she is off to the Austrian Tyrol to sponsor a play hide-away to 30, O, so rich! Americans.

Her professional antics are invariably infantile. She organizes parties at which staid grownups romp about, peeking for hidden treasures. She simply slays them by putting on funny hats, wearing Chaplinesque shoes, with a chinchilla coat to swing her partner in a Virginia reel.

As a mistress of ceremonies she has become an outstanding magnet in satiny supper clubs and is paid as high as $1500 a week. Her most recent exploit was to serve as stooge for a flip talking parrot. She cut the same capers in Paris and along the Riviera before the desolation.

New York has a luncheon crowd as definite in its cheer—any many think classier socially—as the later cocktail, dinner and night club gatherings. It is composed mostly of folk sluiced with a sort of mid-day energy and rarely seen after 3 in the afternoon.

They offer a fashion parade and are the most extravagant buyers of expensive corsages. Out on the coast Pat and Rupert Hughes are followers of this schedule.

Almost daily they round up half a dozen soaring spirits for lunch. In the evening they dine lightly and go to their study to work until long into the night.

Too, there is the Colony's "mystery luncher"—a fashionably attired elegant known as Rudolph Kommer who rarely misses the noon repast. A gourmet of distinction, he brings a friend or so along for a discriminating bite.

None of the regulars or management seem to know a thing about him. Not even Cholly Knickerbocker, Nancy Randolph or Baron Wrangel.

The Holland House—and what a tavern in its hey day!—had a late afternoon bar customer known only as "Hindy." Because of striking resemblance to General Von Hindenburg. He downed three fingers of rye neat, and always alone, from a collapsible silver cup he brought along.

One Christmas evening he made his usual visit, left $500 each for four barmen, the manager and the cashier. Nobody in the lower 5th avenue area ever saw him again.

And the restaurant gang is watching to see if "No. 21" clears a hurdle that has tumbled many established places a cropper. "No. 21" occupies a tacky mansion in the East 50s, a relic with high iron fence and creeping ivy.

One of the sybilline spots such as Foyot's and Voisin in Paris. The sort that never die until they are enlarged and ravaged of their simplicity. Then they finish in quick gallop. The owners recently knocked out a wall and took over a house adjoining. Trade continues brisk after several weeks. But the superstitious still wag their heads and count customers daily.

Among the townbirds chirping at "No. 21" are Robert Benchley, George Jean Nathan, Heywood Broun, Miriam Hopkins, Sheilla Barrett, Louis Long, Dorothy Parker and similar minds in sophisticated scour.

On the wall back of the desk of a Radio City executive is this frank placard: "When finished, please depart quickly!" Cecil Rhodes, empire builder, would always hire men who knew how to get people out of their offices in a jiffy. Judge Gary once declared lingering farewells cost industry millions.

One of the old burlesque producers in the Columbia Theater building had a sign reading: "When you start to go, scram—or you'll never get in again." James Montgomery Flagg handles such nuisances with dispatch. When some visitor announces: "Well, I must be going!" and begins to dawdle he jumps up and goes into another room, slamming the door with a bang.

When strangers started to go in Otto Kahn's office he buzzed his faked up dead phone and would say, "Just a minute, I'm not alone." But he soon was.

Man Asks Brighton Search

LAST SEEN IN AUTOMOBILE

One of the most unusual disappearance cases to come to attention of Boston police was reported in Brighton today when Edward D. Murphy of Summit avenue appealed to the police to find his wife, Olive, 38, and his daughter, Jean, 15.

The mother and daughter have been missing since Saturday, when they stepped into the family automobile and disappeared.

Murphy told police he feared for their safety. He said that Mrs. Murphy had been in poor health

Murphy said he appealed for police aid only after checking relatives and friends in the hope of finding his wife and daughter.

U. S. to Pay Half, Says Curley

BRIDGES, ROAD WORK PLEDGED

Federal officials are ready to foot half the bills on a proposed $9,500,000 program for new state highways and bridges in flood-damaged sections of the state, Governor Curley said today.

Both bridges and highways will be of a permanent nature, he explained, and the grant will be quite distinct from the $3,600,000 already set aside for temporary and municipal projects.

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins had assured him of his aid to Washington yesterday of the state grants a like amount the Government dated.

Plans of proposed projects will be in Hopkins' hands by tomorrow, Curley announced the Governor. Of the total $2 would be requested for bridge construction for highways.

Bridges tentatively under consideration are for the Connecticut river in South Hadley, Holyoke, Deerfield, Shelburne and Northampton; Hadley, Chicopee Falls and the Agawam of Springfield.

VANISHES AFTER DRAWING $1500

Peabody, April 15—Fear that John Dedes, 45, who disappeared after withdrawing $1500 from his bank account, had been slain was expressed today by Police Chief Pierce

Chief Pierce, who launched an investigation after relatives reported the well-to-do bachelor had failed to return home in Monroe street, revealed he was seen talking to a stranger near his bank yesterday

Pierce fears that Dedes was induced in some way by the stranger to withdraw the money from the bank and was then lured to a lonely spot and slain

Also of interest in the investigation was the report from bank authorities that Dedes had never previously withdrawn more than $100 at one time.

Mother of 2 Dying From Burns

Springfield April 15—Fate had been about as cruel to the Kennedys as it could be to anyone.

The baby, James was a federal worker of improvised but new jobless.

Mrs. Kennedy was starting the range in her kitchen today when fuel soaked exploded and made a human torch of her pajama-clad figure.

And the Kennedy babies are only one month and 10 months old, respective y.

Sharkey Forced to Give Half His Loaf to Shucco

I MOVE YOU, MY FRIENDS, to give Boston boxing back to the baby or store it with the old corsets, cuckoo clocks and hair sofas in the attic of forgotten rubbish. It's a lot of outworn folly. At least that squirrelly version which survives in this neck of the fistic jungles, where duffer decisions like the Sharkey-Shucco draw last evening, reduces it to a sillier act than the flabby stomach jiggles of the larded dance hall ladies during yesterday's Red Sox inaugural ceremonies.

Austen Lake

As this pillar's earlier estimates of the man will testify, I am no cousin to Sharkey. He did not fight a pretty battle as the fluid grace of muscular motion goes. But, by the simple standards of butchery and the crudities of sidewalk assault, he won from here to second base, twice having Tony sniffing ether and staggering around with spaghetti-legged wobbles, and once having him on the deck. Or maybe I was too close to the scene to see the same fight.

Under the bland pretense that fighters box only for points like gymnasium fencers scoring ink dots with their red-tipped foils, Shucco may have earned a tie. That comes of trying to make a civilized sport of something that had its roots in the mortal furies of the hairy apes when the original purpose of man-to-man fighting was to inflict much bodily harm and, if possible, bury the body. On that plane Sharkey won.

On the score of poetic motion, like the form of the curlicue skaters and the high board divers, Sharkey lost. And on the meteorological measure of windage caused by the violence of his missed swings, he lost too. But by every standard of crude violence and physical damage he earned the decision.

THE NAUSEOUS SCIENCE

IN THEIR EFFORTS TO REDUCE the nauseous science to a laboratory level, the judges sit on their rubber doughnuts at ringside and mark down decimals for agressiveness, clean hits, misses, etc. It is ridiculous to suppose that these judges, however well-intentioned, can score the patticake taps or sum up the shotgun socks and subtract from the gross total the number of missed swipes. They are bound to get snarled in their own mathematics, as the difference in opinion between ringside officials has often proved. They are bound to lose the detached perspective of a referee who prowls around loose and easy, taking an impersonal gander at the quarrel and jotting down his impressions by rule of eye.

Fighting is the varmint of all sport. And the patrons are fully aware that when they go to see a prize fight they go to see men hurt if fortune is kind. There is no worse bore in the show business than a clever boxing exhibition between two lithe, lean bodies, peckin and dancing like human nits. And no worse knock can be delivered against the box office of an impending match than to say it will be a boxing contest, devoid of any brutality. I think the promoter could almost sue you for saying that.

POLITE INTERLUDE

SHARKEY OPENED NO SLITS in Shucco's brows as he did in the previous bout, though it seemed that his punches landed flusher and oftener on the lighter man's head. But there were moments when one wondered what held Tony vertical on his feet after seeing sprays of mist bounce off his hair from the force of a Sharkey punch.

He landed some adult socks, too, sprinkling the stubble on Jack's chin with wallops that almost unscrewed his neck. But no blood flowed and the nearest thing in color to it was the yesterday stains that dribbled down the Squire's legs from some purple trunks soaked from dousings of the bucket sponge.

There were still ripples of suet on the old soldier's stomach, pleats that wrinkled with each convulsive twist. But his middle wore no blushes from having Tony sink his glove clear up to the wrist as on the last occasion.

There was a moment, too, of exquisite parlor courtesy in the sixth round when Tony fell on his knees while reaching to hit the chin which Sharkey stretched away. He tumbled down, while Sharkey leaned over to assist him upright again like a well-bred gent picking up a lady's bundles. And presently they were back swinging and ducking.

TONY TAKES CURE

THE BIG DRAMATIC MOMENT came in the seventh just before the bell, when Jack fired his right flush to the chin and brought Tony sprawling like a ragdoll. Curfew sounded as he hit the floor and he tried to bound up with a jaunty air but only succeeded in a rubbery kneed stagger that brought his corner crew galloping to fetch him in. He was plainly sleep-walking with his tooth guard bulging out of his mouth and his eyes like burned holes in a blanket.

There was another time when Sharkey crowded him into an angle of the ropes and was fanning his jaw at close range. And then a drowsy look came over the boy's face and the hinges of his knees sagged as one in the first stages of a faint. But he wriggled loose, gulped some fresh breathing air, and cured himself of what ailed him.

After it was over and the graveyard voice in the loudspeaker announced the verdict, Sharkey took his fate with a wry hauteur, leaning over to the press row and remarking that one didn't have to be any stranger to Boston to get a Boston decision.

Breaks Lost Game For Us—McKechnie

CURT DAVIS HUMBLED OUR BEES, BUT WATCH OUT . . .

BEN CANTWELL AFTER FIRST VICTORY

By Bill Grimes

Philadelphia, April 15—Hoping to pull up on even terms with the Phillies Manager Bill McKechnie will send Ben Cantwell to the mound today in the second game of the opening series here.

"I'm not trying to build an alibi for yesterday's setback," declared Manager Bill this morning, "but, the more I analyze that game the surer I am that it just wasn't in the cards for us to win.

"There's no denying but that Curt Davis pinned our ears back for seven innings," continued the Bees' mentor, "but even so we shouldn't have been more than one to the bad going into the eighth.

"Johnny Vergez' tally was a well earned run, produced by sandwiching a beautiful sacrifice between a couple of singles. But the other three runs were gifts from Lady Luck.

GIFT RUNS

"With Curt Davis on first, after his single had scored Vergez in the third, Danny MacFayden failed to square away on a pitch to Ethan Allen and was unable to recover in time to gather in a slow roller, which went for a scratch hit, aided and abetted by a questionable decision.

"When Tony Cuccinello tossed out George Watkins it should have retired the side but due to those two tough breaks, the Phillies had a man on second and third and only two down.

"Even, then, I was confident that MacFayden would pull himself out without allowing any more damage to occur. Instead, however, Johnny Moore topped a curved ball, which hit the plate, took the most freakish bound I've ever seen, and rocketed towards second base, where Tony Cuccinello lost it in the sun and David and Allen counted. Then it was that Dolph Camilli dented the right center field wall, scoring Moore.

"Curt Davis was in mid-season form at the opening. He did not issue a Bee to reach second base until the sixth round. Then, he showed stiff momentarily and Cuccinello walked him for a walk, after which Vergez threw through with a perfect bunt and "Pinky" Whitney was nicked on his right arm with a wild pitch, filling the bases.

OSBORNE GOOD

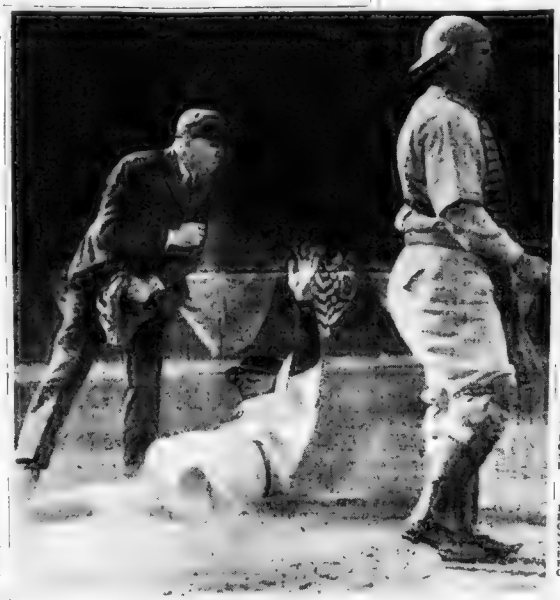
Al Lopez made a fine bid to put the Bees back in the ball game but Leo Norris made a great play on his hard smash and converted it into a double killing, Cuccinello of course, scoring on the play.

Wayne Osborne, the youngster acquired from the Mission Club of the Pacific Coast league, via Brooklyn, received his big league baptism in the ninth inning.

Osborne knows how to pitch. And he is not only plenty fast but he has a fine curve ball. He also might overhand his delivery and there's a nice hop on his fast ball which fooled Umpire Cy Pfirman on at least four occasions in one inning.

Osborne is a crazy kid, with a beautiful build for a pitcher. In some respects, he's far more finished than some of the veterans, for he squares away after every pitch and therefore is in position to go either way for balls hit back at him.

Mr. Wayne Osborne will help the Bees materially.



JOHNNY VERGEZ AL LOPEZ

Not being content with furnishing spectacular pitching, the Phils' star, Curt Davis, banged out a hard single to drive home Johnny Vergez for the run that gave the home fans of Philadelphia the victory. Vergez is sliding across the plate with Lopez following the ball.

ADOLPH CAMILLI HAL LEE

(Pictures from International News Photograph Service)

Hal Lee, slugging Bee outfielder, had to hustle to get back to first in the second inning of the Bees-Phils battle in Philadelphia before Camilli put the ball on him. Lee was the only Bee able to find Curt Davis for hits, getting two, half of his team's total.

ATHLETIC ALUMNI STAR AT BAT FOR RED SOX

By Joe Cashman

The season's first mound appearance of Robert Moses Gove had to be postponed when dismal weather conditions necessitated the cancelling of the Sox-A's game scheduled at Fenway Park today.

"Lefty" was all set to enter the ranks of winning hurlers and join in status with his teammate, Wes Ferrell. A heavy rain that fell during the night and continued early this morning put a damper on the ace southpaw's mound debut.

Anxious to take another stride toward their pennant goal, the Sox players sputtered and fumed at Boston's "lovely weather." Card games and shows will be the lot of Tom Yawkey's million dollar team today but weather permitting they will tackle the A's tomorrow.

But Grove won't pitch. He'll be saved for the Yanks in New York, Friday.

Our southpaw ace looked every bit as good as our right-handed "Mercy-ell" during the exhibition campaign. He won't have to show any improvement in his regular form on how to be as effective as was his illustrious mound mate in the Tuesday tilt.

POOR SUPPORT

Wesley was far from being at his best, except in the pinches. He yielded ten blows, walked six and winged a batter. Poor support also put him in a lot of hot water. But his shrewd mind and courageous heart enabled him to fan ten of the hostiles in tight spots and leave 14 of them stranded on the sacks.

For that reason his performance in winning, 9 to 4, was really more meritorious than his two-hit shutout against the Yankees in the Sox inaugural a year ago. It's easy enough for any pitcher to breeze along to a win when he has air control and all his stuff, but it's only the truly great flingers who can finish in front when they're having an off day.

The platinum-plated Fenway flock didn't play flawless championship ball by any means as they broke from the barrier before a banner crowd of 30,000.

But their virtues far outnumbered their faults during an ideal baseball afternoon.

Undoubtedly the most encouraging feature of the fracas was the slugging of Jimmy Foxx. Our first-sacker snapped out of his batting slump which had held him in its grip throughout the training season, to pound out a triple, double and a single.

GET 13 HITS

Jimmy and his Aa ex-mates in the lineup made Tom Yawkey's mid-winter trades with Connie Mack look very sweet indeed.

With Eric McNair and Roger Cramer adding a pair of singles to Foxx's three hits, the erstwhile Mackian trio were responsible for seven of the 13 blows collected by the Sox off "Spec" Dietrich, Harry Matuzak and "Dutch" Leiber.

Another most pleasant treat was the all-around performance of dashing Billy Werber.

Little Oscar Melillo, who hit surprisingly well in the Southland, continued to do so in the first of the games that count. He contributed a most valuable single to the Sox three-run rallies in the second and fourth.

Only Manager Joe Cronin and his old Washington roomie, "Heinie" Manush failed to get a hit or to otherwise distinguish themselves.

Some carping critics undoubtedly will claim that any club but the impoverished A's probably would have beaten our million-dollar heroes.

There may or may not be something to that.

The A's aren't nearly as helpless as they're generally pictured. They haven't big league battery strength, but they have a lot of class elsewhere.

The Sox were rather sloppy afield, McNair and Cronin each committing two errors and others missing balls they should have snared.

But nobody expects the star-studded Fenway flock to set up any defensive records. They're rated as pennant contenders mainly because of the terrific punch they're supposed to pack. And they showed that punch in their debut.

Diz Hit Dizzy By Cubs

St. Louis, Mo., April 15 (US)—As far as the great man, Dizzy Dean, is concerned, the Chicago Cubs are still champions.

They subjected him to about the finest licking he has taken since his shadow was first cast over the National League.

When a long drawn out game, in which runs, hits, and errors were piled up in amazing fashion was over, the total that emerged from the wreckage was Cubs 12, Cardinals, 7.

Bees Return 2 Rookies To Minors

Philadelphia, April 15—The Bees returned Sharkey Eiland, a young left-hander, to Nashville, and Ray Mueller, a catcher, to Knoxville on loan. Eiland failed to show enough advantage to warrant his outright purchase, but Manager McKechnie figures that he needs another season in the minors.

Mueller will be out on a 24-hour recall agreement. He's a very promising young catcher, according to Manager McKechnie, and should become a fixture on the Bees' roster after a season with Knoxville.

"Lefty" Grove was saved for the Yanks in New York, Friday.

Our southpaw ace looked every bit as good as our right-handed "Mercy-ell" during the exhibition campaign. He won't have to show any improvement in his regular form on how to be as effective as was his illustrious mound mate in the Tuesday tilt.

REFEREE Votes for SQUIRE

SHUCCO SAVED BY BELL

By Jack Conway

Jack Sharkey won from Tony Shucco in their ten-round bout at the Garden before 8600 fans, but only received a draw from the officials.

Referee Johnny Brassil voted for Sharkey, while Judges Francis Bowman and Jim Carrig cast their ballots for a draw. Under the rules of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission, the majority vote of the two judges governed.

The majority of the fans felt Sharkey had scored a clean cut victory. He was an improved Sharkey over the one who lost a close decision to Shucco in the same ring earlier this year.

Sharkey once knocked out Shucco with a left hook to the jaw which landed as the bell sounded for the end of the seventh round. Shucco dropped to one knee then tangled his feet and staggered around the ring in a helpless condition.

NEAR K. O.

Ten seconds worked over him was all it took to get him into condition to answer the gong for the eighth round. If the blow had landed earlier in the seventh round Shucco could not have escaped a knockout. He was wide open for another when to the jaw as he struggled to get his bearings.

Sharkey tried desperately to put over the finishing punch in the eighth round, but failed. Shucco absorbed a savage left hook to the jaw and a crushing right high on the head and fought back with a splendid display of courage.

It was a fast, hard fight Sharkey and Shucco both supplied their fans at the office.

In the early rounds Shucco displayed more aggressiveness than in his ex tom, while his boxing was excellent. Tony was particularly effective when he cut loose with long, looping left hooks to the body. Sharkey found it difficult to defend himself against the punch.

Tony's best action at the opening session. Both boxers stood off at long range most of the time and matched left duds. Sharkey cut loose with one right belt for the jaw but his judgment of distance was poor. The round was even.

Shucco speeded up his boxing in the second stanza and scored repeatedly with left hooks to the stomach. They pulled away from a long right for the jaw which had plenty of power behind it. It was Sharkey's session.

Sharkey blazed away with a right to the jaw in the fifth round, but missed. He then whipped Shucco around the body. At long range Shucco did some brilliant boxing. The stars was even.

The real Sharkey came out in the sixth round and continued merrily through the eighth. The former champion kept pressing a close driving left hooks to the head and body and right swings to the jaw.

The high spot of the bout occurred in the seventh round as Sharkey scored a terrific left hook to the jaw at the bell as the round ended. Early in the round Shucco stumbled and fell. Tony arose feel to the canvas in the eighth round.

Both boxers showed down a bit in the tenth round and honors were even.

The gross gate receipts amounted to $13,203 while the net was $1,617.

WES CLEVER

I thought Wes Ferrell gave a most clever exhibition of pitching. He pitched well as well as he had to which was the secret was to pitch in the early session game. He got by with his hits and passes but when he had to bear down he was able to use his fast one and curve ball good power.

Opening day was a red letter one for Connie Mack's gates to the N. Y.

Little Eric McNair had a perfect day at bat, getting two singles off the left field wall and two walks in four times up. He's a shifty little batter when the ball is very old.

Don't blame Cronin for not putting Ferrell in a pair of singles.

And I'm in Manhattan, I inform for the first time since having his tonsils removed, threw a few balls without any discomfort and it's some pitcher indicating that he'll soon be ready to take his regular turn on the mound.

So Tom Yawkey certainly had a come to feel proud over his million dollar ball club. He didn't know it, but he was betting down on him. And he showed all he what one speed on the ankle.

BATTERS CLICK

We had our bad moments. Manager Joe Cronin and Eric McNair both had the misfortune to bob up with two errors. But you noticed that these mishaps didn't prevent our shortstop and second-baseman from some fine play.

Rarely would be a duo [illegible] if we all played it perfectly every day.

ANN MARSTERS' BEST BETS FOR TODAY

ANN MARSTERS

Maybe all handicappers have a streak of bad luck. I'm hoping that mine has passed. The past two days I have failed to make a winning choice.

It looked for awhile yesterday that I might come up with a few at least. But HEARTBREAK at Arlington Downs and GOOD GAMBLE at Havre de Grace just had to run second. IN FRONT, SON OF TROY and PLAYMORE ran out of the money.

The bankroll is now $527.10 after 12 days of the experiment. Although the past three have been losing ones, we're rooting for winners this afternoon.

POSTAGE DUE, SPEED TO SPARE, IDENTIFY and WINTERSPORT, coupled as the Vanderbilt entry in the fourth at Havre, appears the safest hazard of the card. It's $2 to win.

DUTCH UNCLE in the seventh at Havre and MOWER in the third at Jamaica appear well spotted. I'm betting each to win.

WARREN JR. in the first and TINTAGEL in the fourth at Jamaica are my late specials for this afternoon.

(At the suggestion of Walter O'Hara, Miss Marsters has set out to determine that conservative bets can result in satisfactory profits, or at worst, small losses. Walter O'Hara, Narragansett Park owner, provided the capital with a $1000 gift. Half was turned over to the Boston Evening American Christmas Fund immediately. The remainder will be similarly handled at the end of the experiment. This is the twelfth day of the experiment.

AHEARN THOUGHTS On Birthday Of Great Man o' War

By Bob Ahearn

Man o' War is celebrating his 19th birthday in Kentucky pastures. And a national holiday should be declared for the mighty thoroughbred.

Born in 1917, Man o' War was consigned a year later to the Saratoga sales in a batch of yearlings, the property of August Belmont. Man o' War went to Samuel D. Riddle for $5000. Man o' War was by Fair Play out of the mare Mahubah.

This nation of ours was in the midst of the World War, but still the sport pages had headlines such as these: "Man o' War, crack colt, uncorked at Belmont Park . . . Man o' War wins Keene Memorial . . . Youthful Stakes stamps Man o' War as champion . . . Man o' War takes fourth straight in Hindoon Stakes . . . Tremont Stakes to Man o' War . . . Man o' War chalks up sixth in a row at Saratoga . . ."

Then came the only defeat sustained by the Riddle champion in his career beaten by Upset. In 21 starts during his racing career, Man o' War was the winner in 20. He came back after his defeat by Upset, and 30 days later won the famed Hopeful Stakes. The Belmont Futurity climaxed Man o' War's record as a juvenile.

As a three-year-old, Man o' War was the winner of the Preakness stakes, Withers, Belmont, Dyer, Travers, Lawrence, Realization and Jockey Club Gold Cup. He won the Realization by 100 LENGTHS!

Man o' War has been progenitor of some mighty fine horses in his stud career, Edith Cavell, American Flag, Crusader and Mars . . . A few, Man o' War mares have been invaluable in breeding . . .

GORDON Arrives With 15 NAGS

GILBERT ELSTON WORKS HORSES

Louisville, Ky., April 15 (AP)—Trainer Alex Gordon brings to Churchill Downs from the bluegrass today some fifteen horses of the Elmer Dale Shaffer and Coldstream stud string, headed by the barrel-chested Coldstream himself, rated at 15 to 1 currently in Kentucky derby winter books.

Gordon planned to arrive yesterday but put off shipping because the Farm's track was too wet for works Monday.

Coldstream, a dark bay son of Blenheim II and Miss Dominion, 1-12 of the galloped out the mile in 1 42 3-5. His quarter time was :48 flat :47.

The combination of Trainer R. Thompson and Jockey [illegible] who pulled up lame a furlong after working three-quarters in 1:14 2-5 will not be booked until Friday. The Pal favored in both forces, as he turned off the track and was seen limping. Trainer A. L. Darnaby believed a blind splint was the trouble. The bay colt is a son of Pal a couple of workouts anyway which a derby hopeful can ill spare seventeen days from stake day.

Jocky Gilbert Elston, a top western rider some years ago, is plugging the comeback trail at Churchill Downs, galloping horses for Emil Denemark on mornings and doing road work afternoons. Gil weighed 150 last fall, is down to 125 now and hopes to make 112 pounds or fewer by opening day April 25.

Hardboots watching the pigeon training at the Downs declare Brevity at 33 3-5 seven furlongs Monday is the date perfectly appropriate because to the Louisville track Joseph E. Widener's Derby candidate has never been [illegible] but was different for each [illegible] Brevity, "Train-e," commented the Hardboot boys and [illegible] the boys track wise. Brevity, of course is a colt, of course, and on no other track in the world. When a colt feels his feet in that mud then he just doesn't feel like trying any more that day."

Col. Thomas J. Johnson of Washington, chief of the government remount service, visited the Downs today, a guest of George V. Barnes and Baylor O. Hickman. He surprised horsemen here with the information that 90 per cent of the remount service stallions are thoroughbreds. They are bred to unregistered polo or hunting mares with [illegible] results, he said.

FROM PADDOCK TO POST

Horses and headaches, daily doubles and delirium are just 17 days and a couple of hours from Walter O'Hara's palace of pleasure down 'Gansett way.

Which original thought is prompted by the fact that the jockeys reach Jamaica, Long Island, today for the start of the Eastern racing season. They'll stagger off the stage at the winter's first snowfall or thereabouts.

Six races are carded at the New York track with the featured Paumonok Handicap finding King Saxon last year's sprint king, meeting six other turf aristocrats.

Psychic Bid, Cycle, Preeminent Sailor Beware and the coupled entry of Quel Jeu and Tintagel complete the list of speedsters who will dash six furlongs for a $5000 purse. A deuce on King Saxon probably wouldn't get you peanut money, for the bookies made their own odds under the New York system and none of them ever died from enlargement of the heart.

One to watch would probably strike them as generous in view of the imposing record of Pat Knebelkamp's "King" last year and recent fast trials.

Better odds will be offered on Marshal Field's Tintagel which is coupled with Arden Farm's Quel Jeu. If Quel Jeu goes, the horse is capable of setting a pace that will soften up the field for Tintagel in the drive. Tintagel might be a good bet.

Down at the 'Graw today, young Mr. Vanderbilt is practically racing against himself in the fourth when four of the eight-horse field are sporting his cerise and white.

Morning line has Speed to Spare identity as the gentleman who gave his stable buddy, Discovery, an artistic shellacking on one occasion last year.

Vanderbilt luck and Vanderbilt prestige should provide a settled business on the mutuels but Broker's Tip is a lot of horse and the new Mr. Jonek could outguess 90 per cent of the Vanderbilt riders in his sleep.

Willie Peters, who popped down at the mutuel balance figures in Florida Arcourse and Vote Boy complete the field.

• • •

Black Highbrow returns to the post today in a six furlong allowance canter at Arlington Downs. The horse established a record as a stake performer previously but is coming up against fast company in this effort.

Top weight of 116 pounds is apt to prove a trifle heavy when the pressure is applied by Naughty, which gets a break at 106. Naughty prepped in Florida and set up some fast time marks.

Always Blue, Cottingham, Sadie F., Be Big and the Pollard entry of High Omar and Billy I. complete the field.

• • •

Bay Meadows comes through today with a card of eight claiming races with $700 purses as tops.

Most of the better horses have moved toward the more fertile eastern fields so that the majority of the competitors are only a few jumps ahead of the wagon or the glue factory.

The sixth looks as much like a feature as anything else and in that race Rodney Dan carrying only 96 pounds has a splendid chance to sneak in ahead.

He will get a lot of opposition from Cusanaca, St. Stephens and Stainforth but running on his home course should spell victory.

By Dave Wilson

(Selections made for a fast track)

BEST BET—KAPENA

Havre De Grace Race Track, Md., April 15—Kapena, as he is placed in the one mile and a sixteenth of the sixth stanza, shapes up as the best betting proposition on another difficult card of seven races here today.

FIRST RACE
Pass Em By, Vanderbilt Entry, Ejector

String along with PASS EM BY in this juvenile affair. This sweet-running filly would have drubbed Jackie D. and other good youngsters but for racing greenly in his last. MALISPINA and MOONBURN, which are coupled as the Vanderbilt entry, should offer the contention. EJECTOR figures well in the fight for the minor award.

SECOND RACE
Minton, Epitaph, Singing Heart

MINTON, a slow beginner, is favored by the extreme outside post position. EPITAPH figures close up on the strength of a recent Howie win. SINGING HEART, if up to a race, will be hard to keep out of the picture.

THIRD RACE
Dowdy Dell, Dogmata, Some Good

DOWDY DELL, pitted a trifle too ambitiously in a long Bowie outing, needs only to run her usual good race. DOGMATA, third to Epitaph and War Saint, ran a winning race after breaking slowly. SOME GOOD, on general form, shapes up well for the short end.

FOURTH RACE
Vanderbilt Entry, Wise Prince, Accolade

POSTAGE DUE SPEED TO SPARE, and IDENTITY, the Vanderbilt entry, are tops in this number. Contention, if any, will likely be furnished by WISE PRINCE. The latter drubbed a shifty field that included Vanderbilt's Dreel at the other town. ACCOLADE, on last year's form, figures next best.

FIFTH RACE
Corum, Strophe, Byrdrye

CORUM is strictly the horse to win this. STROPHE, on general Bowie form, figures close up. BYRDRYE is a money possibility on best Florida form.

SIXTH RACE
Kapena, Jamail, Sleek

KAPENA, third to Ross and Venetian on opening day, needs only to duplicate that. JAMAIL, a beaten favorite last time at Bowie, should offer the contention. SLEEK holds plenty of class.

SEVENTH RACE
Dutch Uncle, Taunton, Dancing Cloud

DUTCH UNCLE, dropping down, stands out like the proverbial sore thumb. TAUNTON, a stated starter on today's card, should furnish the contention if sent right back. DANCING CLOUD merits a fighting chance on good Bowie races.

Budge, Mako In N.-S. Tourney

Pinehurst, N. C., April 15 (AP)—Two members of the Davis Cup contingent, Donald Budge and Gene Mako, arrived today to enter the annual North and South tennis tournament, which began Monday.

Wilmer Allison, Davis Cup captain and No. 1 player, planned to stop at Clinton, S. C., for an exhibition match tonight and was not expected until tomorrow. The trio came here from Houston, Tex., where the U. S. team routed Mexico in the zone finals last week.

Death Catches Up With 'Dapper Dan'

Milwaukee, April 15 (AP)—Daniel Lally, known as "Dapper Dan" when he played major league baseball early in the century, died at the Milwaukee County hospital yesterday. He was 59 years old. Lally played with the Chicago and St. Louis American League teams and with the Pittsburgh Pirates.

That's the offer of Miss Ann Marsters, girl handicapper, whose amazing win record has startled veteran turf experts.

To the person guessing nearest the amount of her betting bankroll on May 16 will go $100 in cash and season passes to Rockingham, Narragansett and Suffolk Downs. Next best guessers will receive a total of 15 season passes.

It's a fascinating game and there are no strings or catches.

Miss Marsters started with $500 donated by Walter O'Hara. How much will she have May 16. Entries close May 4.

Double-Deck Stalls At Suffolk

Double deck stalls will be constructed at Suffolk Downs this season and General Manager Allan J. Wilson is responsible for the latest innovation.

And "sleeping with the horses" literally becomes true of the new stables at Suffolk Downs, erection of which have begun. These new stalls will provide sleeping quarters for the stable hands above the horses.

It will also save considerable tack room and other space about the track. This is the plan followed in many of the newer stables built at Maryland tracks.

Austin O'Connor is supervising the erection of the stables, which will provide 200 additional stalls at Suffolk.

Far Away Hills . . . Marathon Champ Prefers Baseball

By Will Connell

Three men on, last of the ninth in the World Series, the home team three runs in the drag.

As thousands cheer, mighty Johnny Kelley steps to bat and cannons the ball over the garden wall for a home run. He trots around the bases and is nearing home when—

"Wake up now," the voice of Mrs. Bertha Kelley, reaches into dreamland to summon son John to the realities of a sparkling Tuesday morning in Arlington.

It's no ordinary phantom slumber magic that transforms slim Johnny from a tiny figure of a marathoner with sandpaper legs to a husky major league commonfolks' king.

From early grammar school days Johnny found more fun in baseball than any other sport, and fast and aggressive, showed promise at the game. Passing years added a bit to his height, but only ounces where many lads pack on pounds. So he turned to distance racing as a sports cloth cut more nearly to the measure of his talents.

BALKED HOPES

Even today, when he's rated the best of the world's marathoners he'd rather be a baseball star than anything else. He contents himself with the role of a bleacher performer, and lets the high salaried slaves carry on, as proxies in his stead.

"Take me out to the ball game," becomes the song and Johnny travels to Fenway Park to see the Sox top the Athletics. During pregame flag raising Johnny stands at attention, rigid as a West Pointer on dress parade. He forgets the crowd, and sees nothing at all except the flag, and that ruffling gently in the spring breeze.

"What a thrill," he says a few moments later. "I forget all about the crowd here, and imagined another flag raising, and marathon lasting for the United States against the whole world, at Berlin."

Home again after the game and dining on roast beef, three sweet potatoes (which Johnny says have more than twice as much food value as the white variety), four slices of white bread, tapioca pudding, tea, and half a sliced banana.

"Well, I hope I hit something that way," he grins during the half hour's rest after the meal, "The best opening game I ever saw. Those Red Sox are going to make a

Out of doors again, walking briskly to Angus MacDonald's home on Howard Street, Arlington. MacDonald has been Johnnys' trainer for years and his work plays a larger part in Kelley's success than most folks know.

Good nights are said after MacDonald talks over condition with Johnny. Then the walk home. It's after 8:30, the radio is turned on while Johnny riffles the pages of a magazine and reads a bit. First there's a slight yawn, stifled. Then a good, full-fashioned yawn, and Johnny admits he's ready for some sleep.

And so to bed.

FLOYD GIBBONS' PAGE OF THRILLS AND MYSTERY

Nineteen-year-old William Collins, Jr., of 10 Gilbert street, Framingham, is the creator of this fine portrait of Adventurer Gibbons and a very good piece of work it is, too.

Gib[illegible] this [illegible] Collins, and our [illegible] THE EDITOR.

Horse Show Special

Adventurer Risks Neck in Million Dollar Accident

By FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

Walter Siefert, of Elberon, N. J., is today's Distinguished Adventurer and winner of the lucky ten berries. Give him a hand, boys and girls, and welcome him into the club.

Walt ran into a big thrill in the month of November, in the year 1931—or maybe I should say that Walt was carried into that thrill.

For he certainly didn't go into it of his own accord. In fact, he was asleep when, all of a sudden, he landed right smack in the middle of the doggone thing.

It was the most [illegible] experience in all Walt's life he says and I [illegible] it. It's bad enough to have an ads in the like [illegible] but when you're catapulted into it right out of a sound sleep well then it's just about ten times worse.

Walt had been up at a big livestock and horse show at Kansas City, Mo. He was a stableman in charge of a bunch of blooded horses—the kind of nags that ordinary guys like you and me would be afraid to sit down at a table with. They were all well-fed, spirited animals, and, like all blooded horses, nervous and high-strung. It was no cinch taking care of them even under normal circumstances. You can imagine what they'd be like if the circumstances got to be—well—sort of abnormal.

The show was closing, and all the horses were being taken away. Part of Walt's [illegible] was to ride along with them in the box car in which they were being transported. That car was on a train of cars. In all [illegible] horses which were being taken from Kansas City to another livestock show in Chicago.

The Million Dollar Livestock special, that's what they called the train. But by the time it got to Chicago, its cargo wasn't worth ten cents on the dollar.

It was a Sunday morning. Walt had been up all night packing [illegible] and getting [illegible] to the ears. When the train started he rolled right into his bunk, to get his first sleep in twenty four hours. The bunk was built at the top of the car right over the horses.

Over some of them [illegible] for that car contained [illegible] horses, ten trunks, two [illegible], and a lot of other [illegible] show paraphernalia.

As Walt got into his bunk the train started to move. It rolled along to the outskirts of the town and then began to pick up speed. It seemed to Walt that it was going pretty doggone fast.

He couldn't see out, for there were no windows in the car, but he could tell from the way the wheels clicked on the rails and the way the car rocked back and forth. As he dropped off to sleep the last thing he remembered was a remark the conductor had made just before they started.

"We're going to give you the fastest ride you ever had to Chicago!" Those were the conductor's words, and Walt had good reason to remember them later.

[illegible] and Walt [illegible]. He slept [illegible] and [illegible] and [illegible] the next [illegible] how he was getting up in his bunk with the strange [illegible] something terrible had happened.

At the same instant Walt saw the [illegible] of his bunk loom up [illegible]. Everything seemed to be mixed up with horses and trunks and [illegible] flying everywhere.

"It came so quickly," he says, "that I didn't have time to think. I was falling down into the bottom of the car with all those stampeding horses, and all I can remember was that I was trying to stay on top.

"Everything was flying under me. I landed in the middle of the car in a jumble of horses, [illegible] and trunks, and jumped up to get out of the way of the [illegible] horses. Then I noticed that all the horses but one were down [illegible] on the floor.

"I thought they were dead. The one horse that was standing on its [illegible] horse valued at the [illegible] dollars—was beginning to come up and move around. I quieted her down and then began to yell for help. Finally a man came and opened the door from the outside, and I crawled out. I'll never forget the sight I saw, once I got out into the open.

"It was [illegible] and [illegible] was even as [illegible] light—light enough for Walt to see the most horrible scene his eyes had ever beheld. The [illegible] cars of the train, all full of men and horses, were piled up in one big heap of wreckage.

"Some of the cars," he says, "were standing straight up on end. Others were crushed like match boxes. The air was filled with the screams of dying horses and the shrieks of men who were pinned beneath the wreckage.

"It was several hours before I could get my horses out. My car, luckily, hadn't overturned. I got out all my animals but one, a [illegible]. A pony that died of a broken neck. Four men were killed, and all of the others were injured. All I got was a bump on the [illegible]. I was lucky I didn't get a broken neck like that pony."

Well, sir, it looks like a lot of you boys and girls are breaking your necks sending in your adventure stories. I just got another big batch today. Now, all I want is to hear from the others. Watch for tomorrow's neck-cracking yarn by Melvin Cohen of Chelsea.

FLOYD GIBBONS, America's great Headline hunting adventurer wants to hear all about YOUR adventure. Floyd believes that everyone has adventures, and that they ought to have a chance to tell the rest of the world about them.

He has formed a great, nationwide Adventurers Club, with more than 40,000 members to date, just for that purpose, and he will pay $10 for each TRUE adventure yarn he prints in his column, and $100 for the best story of the month.

See the box at the right for further details.

One-Sided Contracts Unjust to Film Stars

THE STUDIOS are having a great deal of trouble with their stars, and a great deal of the trouble they have brought on themselves

In the first place, many of the contracts are essentially unjust to the star

Many of these contracts are made over such long periods that the stars are practically in servitude for life.

A few years ago the law of California only permitted contracts of five years

But the moving pictures producers smuggled a provision through a venal Legislature raising the contract period to seven years

Contracts can now be made with a promising young star at a trivial sum over a period of seven years

No matter how great and successful and how valuable the star may become to the producer, no increase of salary can be had except at the producer s volition and to the extent that he considers desirable

* * *

IF THE STAR refuses to continue at an inadequate compensation, he or she gets no pay at all, and the contract still holds.

This naturally arouses in the star a smarting sense of injustice.

Another extremely unjust feature of the contracts the producers force upon their employes is the yearly option. Under these optional contracts, the producer has the right to terminate the contract at the end of every year, but the employe must continue for the full seven years.

The contract therefore is entirely one-sided. It binds the star for seven years but only binds the producer for one year.

As a matter of fact, these spider-web contracts bind the stars for much more than seven years because if ever, and whenever, the producer increases the star's compensation, the producer invariably insists that for the added compensation the star shall renew the contract for another seven years from the date of the increase

As a consequence, the employe is in a state of perpetual bondage.

A third most unjust provision in these one-sided contracts allows the producer to hire out the star exactly as bondsmen in olden days were rented out. The star get no additional compensation for this slave-trade transaction, but the producer may, and practically always does, make an enormous profit out of the deal

A producer may rent out a star for three or five or ten times the amount of the star's salary, and the producer pockets the profit of this contract labor.

* * *

THE STARS are not peons. They are not coolies. They resent this injustice. They also resent the fact that they are being paid by their bond-master only one-fifth or one-tenth of what others are willing to pay for their services.

Yet the stars can not get jobs at these higher salaries which others are willing to pay. They are constrained by their coolie contracts

So the producer rents the stars out and he gets the money. There surely are laws in the free State of California to prevent this kind of peon labor.

And if there are no laws, the Legislature would better get busy and pass some.

At least the Legislature can repeal the seven-year bondage law which was feloniously passed by a former Legislature traitorous to the public interest.

Instead of raising the peon period from five years to seven, it should have been reduced to three years

Perhaps labor generally will sense the threat to their independence in these coolie contracts.

LEWIS HANEY ON POLITICS

Roosevelt Seeks TO FAN 'FLAMING YOUTHS' INTO Vote Movement

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, April 15—Mr. Roosevelt's Baltimore speech shows that he intends to proceed along the lines marked out by Professor Tugwell. He definitely rejected proposals for sound money and for putting the federal finances in order, calling them "panaceas." He definitely announced his intention to adopt radical schemes for what he considers to be social reforms.

* * *

Politically, one of the most interesting aspects of his speech is that it is in answer to the old-time Democrats. It is an appeal to "young Democrats" to abandon the political principles of their fathers—their belief in local self-government and their opposition to bureaucracy.

This appeal is based on the so-called "youth movement." In this country, we have been witnessing the rise of the professional "youth," and of course a group of "organizers" and "leaders" who seek to nurse the movement along and thus gain power and get incomes for themselves.

It seems to me that it is about time to have a middle-age movement! Why not organize the mature—men and women in their prime—the active and experienced people of the country?

The old folks have their Townsend plan. Now the President of the United States is seeking to fan "flaming youth" into a vote-for-Roosevelt movement. What about the rest of us? We are the ones who will have to foot the bills.

* * *

But the President is careful not to forget the old folks. He suggests 65 as the deadline. Beyond that age, he suggests that work should cease, and the natural inference is that "something will be done" for the sexagenarians, too.

Thus the only ones not provided for are those between the ages of 18 and 65. So the President proposes that those in this age group who are wage earners shall be taken care of as follows:

Jobs are to be provided by shortening the working week.

At the same time, the workers' pay envelopes are to be kept "at least as large" as they are today.

* * *

This happy combination of less work for more pay is to be arranged by the federal government. He says: "The government must give and will give consideration to such subjects as the length of the working week, the stability of employment on an annual basis, and the payment of at least adequate minimum wages."

You will note that this is a direct challenge to the young men who wrote the Constitution, and to the Supreme Court. (Those who listened in did not miss Mr. Roosevelt's sarcastic reference to the death of his National Recovery Administration scheme, which was declared unconstitutional by unanimous decision of that court in the Schechter case. Why did he omit it from his published remarks?)

* * *

In his emphasis on change and experiment, the President certainly talks as a very young person. What he fails to grasp are the "eternal verities," and some of these are as follows:

1—Human nature does not change.

2—The individual person is a reality, and as such has not only duties, but rights.

3—Youth lacks training and experience. (Fortunately, it doesn't stay young!)

4—Saving is necessary, and has to be done by individuals.

5—Wages must come out of the product of labor, and the less work, the less labor product.

6—A minimum wage fixed above the product of one laborer, must limit the maximum wage of some other laborer who produces more.

7—"Human values" include economic value as an important part.

8—Economic value cannot be measured except in money, which has a value of its own.

9—No government can long endure which does not balance its budget and pay its way.

* * *

The same young man who said, "Out of the mouths of babies," also said: "But when I became a man, I put away childish things."

EXPECT Loan Cotton SALE TO BEGIN TOMORROW

By International News Service

Washington, April 15—Sale of 1,000,000 of the 4,400,000 bales of cotton on which 12-cent per pound loans were made under the AAA is expected to begin tomorrow.

Forms for cotton producers, to whom loans were made, to sign are in the mails.

While sales at less than the market price are barred, thus holding down the nominal losses of the government, cotton experts estimate a deficiency of approximately $69,000,000 if all of the loan cotton is sold at market prices.

Meanwhile AAA officials have declined to discuss the loan program for the 1936 crop. It is known that the plans under discussion, however, are for loans well below the market price.

Some Southern Congressmen have insisted on a 12-cent loan policy for the year's crop, but in view of the experience with the 12-cent loan, with the market price dropping below that figure, economic advisers of the AAA have urged a lower loan figure for this year.

Officials declined to discuss the Brookings Institution report, which called the cotton loan policy a "serious mistake."

Further Delays

Further delays in the soil conservation program were evidenced when an announcement of the appointment of state committees for the New England section, anticipated for today or a week, were not forthcoming.

Neither had the formation of practices and regulations for farmers to comply with been announced for any section except the southern states and the north central group.

The state committees have been announced only for the latter group, together with practices for that section, comprising the corn belt states.

Rates of payment on cotton, tobacco, rice, peanuts, flax and sugar beets and sugar cane have been announced, but not the soil building practices for the southern states.

March Credit Sales Take Slump

St. Louis, April 15 (AP)—The National Retail Credit Association reported today that credit sales and collections for March slumped throughout large areas of the East, due to severe flood conditions, while an improvement in general business conditions helped retail sales in other sections of the country.

The association analyzed reports from 58 cities, representing 15,764 retail stores.

Thirty-eight cities reported increases in collections, 19 cities had decreased collections, and one reported no change. The average increase for all cities was 4.2 per cent. The greatest increase was 61 per cent at Canon City, Col., and the greatest decrease 20 per cent at Augusta, Me.

BOSTON Investment BANKERS ORRIN G. WOOD HONORED

Boston investment bankers today acted as hosts at luncheon and dinner meetings in honor of Orrin G. Wood of Estabrook & Co., president of the Investment Bankers Association of America.

The luncheon was held at the Exchange Club, while the dinner took place at the Algonquin Club.

Both meetings were arranged by the association's New England group. William Barron, Jr., of White, Weld & Co. is chairman of this group, while Albert P. Everts of Paine, Webber & Co. is a vice-president of the Investment Bankers Association, and James J. Minot of Jackson & Curtis is a member of the association's board of governors.

Mr. Everts was also a guest of honor at yesterday's meeting, as was Alden H. Little of Chicago, executive vice-president of the Investment Bankers Association.

In an interview Mr. Wood was asked his opinion on the outlook for the investment banking business in 1936.

"While I do not wish to stand in the role of a prophet," Mr. Wood said, "it does seem reasonable to anticipate that the investment banking business will experience a year at least as satisfactory as 1935, and possibly even more so. There is still a large accumulation of funds seeking investment, so that the demand for securities should continue to be good.

"There is still a large amount of refunding to be done that would be advantageous to corporations. Finally, and even more important, the general business outlook is in many respects encouraging, and it is possible that during the course of the year business activity may reach a high enough level to stimulate a demand on the part of corporations for new capital for purposes of business expansion.

"Of the two and one-quarter billion dollars par value of new corporate issues sold during 1935, only four hundred million dollars represented financing to obtain new capital. On the other hand if we take the five-year period from January 1, 1921 to January 1, 1931 and omit the abnormal years of 1928 and 1929 we find that the average annual corporate financing amounted to almost four and one-half billion dollars and of this amount over three and one-half billion dollars represented financing to obtain new funds.

"So even though 1935 was the best year that the investment banking business has experienced since 1931 you can see that there is still a good deal of room for improvement."

North American Oil

North American Oil Consolidated declared a dividend of 25 cents, payable May 5 to stock of record April 20, a similar amount was paid February 10, last.

LIFE INSURANCE INVESTMENTS In Gov't. Bonds Up

The field of investments available for life insurance companies narrowed down considerably in recent years due to the collapse of the real estate market and the lack of new offerings in the long-term capital markets.

This has caused insurance companies to invest rather heavily in U. S. Government bonds.

The chart shows that in 1929 life insurance companies had 42 per cent of their assets invested in farm and other mortgages, and only 2 per cent in government bonds.

In 1935 investments in government bonds jumped to 11.7 per cent, while real mortgages declined to 22.7 per cent.

The Wall Street Journal reports three billion invested by life insurance companies during 1935. Of this amount over 51 per cent went into government bonds and only 17 per cent into mortgage bonds.

Wall Street Sidelights

New York, April 15 — Although the interest of members of the New York Stock Exchange in the annual election next May has been much less marked than last year, the announcement of the official slate caused a good deal of talk among members and their partners because of the omission of the name of Allen L. Lindley, the present chairman of the committee on business conduct.

Some fellow brokers thought the move beneficial for the interests of the exchange.

Other commentators, particularly some of the Fourth Estate, were more emphatic in their opinion. Their feeling grew out of experiences over the years. As vice-president of the exchange from 1930 to 1935 inclusive and in his present office, Mr. Lindley has never been readily accessible to the press, although his official pronouncements made his views on matters of great public interest. This failing was not in keeping with the claimed "new policy" of the exchange of desiring to be known as the public market place of the whole nation.

Wheeling & Lake Erie Bond Rumors Persist

Reports persist in bond circles that the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad will put out a bond issue to pay accumulations on its prior lien stock and pay the stock off at 110. Since most of the issue is held by the Nickel Plate, the latter road would be chief beneficiary of such an operation if it materializes. The gossip suggests that if this occurs the Nickel Plate would then be in a position to negotiate with Pittsburgh & West Virginia on its holdings of Wheeling & Lake Erie second preferred and common. F. W. Taplin, president of the P. & W. Va. and the Van Sweringen interests have long contested for control of the P. & W. Va. Elimination of the Taplin faction would make it possible to merge the P. & W. Va. into the system to be built around the Chesapeake & Ohio, the story contends.

Burlington 1936 Showing Better

Marked improvement in the showing of Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad is heartening the management of Great Northern and Northern Pacific Railroads, each of which owns one-fourth of the Burlington. Freight car loadings of Burlington thus far this year are running 10 per cent ahead of 1935. Traffic improvement enabled the carrier to show net income in 1935 and February, against net losses in the like 1935 months, for the first two 1936 months, the roads had net income of $421,786, against net loss of $1,014,374 in the like 1935 period. The Burlington in 1935 earned $1.08 a share on common stock, against $2.61 in 1934.

Last year it paid a dividend of $2 a common share, which meant payments to Great Northern and Northern Pacific of $3,416,782 each. In 1932, 1933 and 1934 the Burlington paid a dividend of $3, and in 1931 it paid $10.

Elec. Power Output Advances in Week

New York, April 15 (AP)—The Associated Press index of electric power production advanced for the week ended April 11 to 106.7, duplicating the record high point for the index as recorded for the week ended Feb. 27.

The previous week's figure was 104.2, and for the corresponding week last year 97.8. The index is based on electric outturn records of 1929-30 as a 100. The range for recent years follows:

| | 1936 | 1935 | 1934 | 1933 |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| High | 106.7 | 103.5 | 97.4 | 91.9 |
| Low | 102.9 | 94.1 | 91.8 | 80.2 |

Edison Electric Institute reports electric power output for the week ended April 11 at 1,933,610,000 kilowatt hours, representing a more than seasonal gain of 9 of 1 per cent over the production of the preceding week.

The increase over the 1935 corresponding week was 12.1 per cent, in contrast with a 12.7 gain for the week ended April 4 over the like period of 1935.

HIGHER Wage Scale NEEDED FORD COMBATS CHISELING

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service.)

New York, April 15—The biggest lie told on the soapboxes is that the American workingman has nothing to lose from a change in our economic system.

Reference to simple bookkeeping will show that the American workingman, in addition to his savings, has a vital interest in a system which provides him with higher living standards than workers enjoy in other countries of the world.

From a scientific standpoint, the interesting question is what is the secret of the American vogue of relatively higher real wages?

An American industrialist, in discussing this subject recently with Europeans, was frequently confronted with the assertion that the explanation lies in the vast natural resources in this country. But this is not the whole story.

It is true that Europe lacks copper, cotton and sulphur, and most of the western European countries lack oil. On the other hand, they have most of the essential raw materials, including coal, iron, limestone and salt. China and Russia, which are especially rich in natural resources, have paid low real wages.

V. Orval Watts, Antioch College economist, in a study of wages for the American Management Association, touches the vital point, when he declares:

"Primarily, American wages are high because the per capita productivity of the workers in our major industries is high, as for example in farming, mining, steel production and industries where power-driven machinery is much used. This productivity is high, in turn, because the American worker is equipped with more tools and labor-saving machinery than the average worker in any other country.

"But why are American workers so fortunate in possessing this equipment which makes possible low costs and high wages? Is it because Americans are more inventive? Not altogether, for the Germans, Swiss and English have probably produced proportionately as many basic inventions as we have.

"Ideas alone, moreover, cannot produce machinery. They remain sterile, as they did in ancient Greece and Rome, unless there exist the means and incentive for putting them into effect—savings and investment, interest and profits.

"In the last analysis, therefore, this equipment, or capital, on which American prosperity depends is maintained and increased by the decisions of individuals to save and by the decisions of business men to invest those savings in new equipment."

Income CUT BY HIGH Costs

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

Increased business with resulting gains in gross revenues are said to have been of little help to New England rails in the first quarter of this year.

A jump in operating costs because of wage cut restorations, higher cost of materials and supplies plus some unexpected expense because of winter storms, served to pare net operating incomes.

However, this somewhat disheartening news is at least partially offset by the outlook for the second quarter. The National Shippers Advisory Board estimates that there will be another gain in the New England freight movement. The increase is placed at a figure 6.4 per cent above that of the second quarter of 1935.

* * *

The rate of business activity in this fourth year of recovery is not only at the highest level yet attained but is more evenly sustained than in the preceding spring recoveries. The Administrative and Research Corporation Business trend index currently stands at 82.8 compared with the 73.3 at the same time last year. In connection with the index it is stated in the current bulletin of the corporation that the upward movement appears to be sufficiently strong to justify moderate optimism toward the trend of the second quarter.

* * *

Notebook: The pleasing business prospect noted above is not finding reflection in securities markets . . . And naturally brings up the question of what is troubling stock prices . . . News is generally blamed . . . But we are not being hurt wonder if the real answer does not lie in the market itself . . . It is entirely possible that the business picture has often been fully discounted in many directions . . . Stock groups after strong gives us the impression of struggling . . . And caution is needed in making new commitments in the hope of catching situations believed to be behind the market.

* * *

Stock prices have been literally thrown on their back. And while we are not inclined to take any chances at current high levels, it does seem the volume appearing during selling lacks the usual keenness. Rails balk when the highs of some weeks ago are approximated and suggest the present market picture has its flaws. And it has and the rails themselves are the principal cause for worry. The latest upswing lacked uniformity, and if it had not been for the buoyancy of two or three leaders the group, as measured by averages, would not have approached its previous peak.

* * *

Ticker Talk: Heavy industry stocks, considering their better trade position are probably the best buys for those who wish to make new commitments . . . Trucks still seem cheap . . . A fairly long digestive phase has taken care of the previous rise . . . General Electric should and may yet flash . . . Goodrich lost little time in picking up speed after flashing through 21 . . . The spot which we noted as a buying signal . . . Rubbers, generally, however, seem to have travelled pretty fast.

Boston Exchange Application Denied

The SEC has denied the application of the Boston Stock Exchange for continuance of unlisted trading privileges in the common stock of Studebaker Corporation. The commission found that the stock was not admitted to unlisted trading on the exchange prior to March 1, 1934.

STOCKS Stage Quiet RALLY TRADING DULL

New York, April 15—Recoveries of fractions to 3 or more points appeared in today's stock market.

While buying lacked vigor, selected rubbers, motors, utilities, rails and specialties were in demand from the opening.

Among the gainers were Good year, Goodrich, Chrysler, General Motors, American Telephone, North American, American Water Works, Electric Power & Light, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, New York Central, Great Northern, Pennsylvania, Douglas Aircraft, Columbian Carbon, Case, du Pont and Westinghouse. Steels and mines did little.

Commodities were moderately mixed. U. S. government securities turned upward in the bond market.

Many traders were said to have withheld orders in the interim pending a clarification of the Rhineland and Ethiopian problems. Elections were also being awaited for indications as to whether a sizable slice will be cut out of the French bloc.

On the home grounds, however, favorable business and industrial portents were seen in many directions.

Mixed Items

While it was believed first-quarter profits of a number of important companies would fall somewhat below those of the same 1935 period, the continued progress in the rate of automobile production, electric power consumption, car loadings, steel mill activities and retail sales pointed to a bright second quarter.

In the grist of optimistic items was the report of the Iron Age which found that expanding demand for finished steel products from practically all consuming industries had pushed ingot production up two points over the previous week to 60 per cent of capacity, another new top since 1930.

The survey could find no definite sign of a reaction in the present rate for the coast another month. Railroad buying, it was said, have been accelerated, shipments to farm implement makers are well sustained and the automobile manufacturers are set among the most important customers of the steel mills.

The Reynolds Index firmed 00¼ of a cent at 8.50¾, cents at the start of foreign exchange transactions, and steel was ¼ of a cent high er at $1.94½.

Steel Operations Rate Increases

New York, April 15 (AP)—An increase in the rate of operations of the steel industry this week with slight indication of a recession within a month was reported today by "Iron Age."

Expanding demand for finished steel products, noticeable this week from practically all consuming outlets.

The automobile industry is pushing for deliveries on May schedules. Railroad buying has been accelerated. Shipments to farm implement makers are well sustained and general agricultural demand is stronger.

Heavy construction activity is dragging, but the building industry is taking large tonnages of steel on old contracts. Structural buying is at an improved rate and sheet and strip steel is moving freely to automotive manufacturers in larger volume.

In fact, the current picture offers little indication of a recession in the rate of steel production for at least another month. Ingot output this week is at 60 per cent of capacity, a rise of 2 points.

Wall Street Hears

That no near-term increase is likely in the $2 annual dividend rate of South Porto Rico Sugar (PSU).

That Sherwin-Williams (SHW) on the stock will show more than $8 a share for the fiscal year to end August 31.

Bank to Close

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 15, 1936

LARGEST EVENING CIRCULATION net paid average, 6 months ending March 31, 1936 260,723

—ROMAN HOLIDAY—

Copyright, 1936, by American Newspapers, Inc.

Drawn by Robert J. Malone

"JIM" FARLEY—former member of the Boxing Commission of New York, entrusted with the classification and rating of pugilists, arrangement of their matches and the distribution of the stakes, or "gate"; later, Chairman of this Commission and High Cockalorum of the—ALWAYS—shady industry of PRIZE FIGHTING.

Now, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee of New York; also Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, and for the last three years, and still, TO THE MORTIFICATION OF EVERY RIGHT-THINKING AMERICAN, Postmaster-General of the United States and political adviser of a PRESIDENT!

As National Democratic Chairman and Presidential adviser, Farley is STILL A MATCHMAKER.

Not matching "pugs," with cauliflower ears and flattened noses, it is true, but quite as evil and disreputable a form of matchmaking, i. e., matching public expenditure and public office with blocks of purchasable votes!

But why expect anything different from Farley, brought up on Tammany's schooling in "the cohesive power of public plunder"?

* * *

THE cartoonist has portrayed the Tammany Hall origin and background of Farley in the wraithlike figures of "Boss" Tweed and Richard Croker, departed bosses of Tammany Hall, who smile approval as Farley, like one of the emperors of Rome's decadence, says "thumbs down" as he consigns Civil Service and the merit system to death at the hands of the swollen and debased figure of "Political Patronage."

And death it has proved, for never was known in our history such utter and callous debauchery of the national Civil Service as now prevails under Roosevelt and Farley, with hundreds of thousands of political workers and heelers appointed to useless and made offices which they hold at the public expense—a bought and paid for nucleus of electoral support for the re-election of the President, who, Farley has said, "WOULD NOT PERMIT HIMSELF TO BE DEFEATED."

Tammany Hall has been a synonym of corruption for more than a century.

Its district leaders have practiced a counterfeit humanitarianism which took the form of "relief" as elections approached, just as now in Washington under "Tammany Jim's" direction.

It is Tammany Hall's old stand-by.

* * *

WHAT Democrat with a memory does not recall how a Tammany vote or a Tammany nominating speech or Tammany support in any form has handicapped a candidate in the national conventions of the Democratic Party?

There was stigma in the very name.

But Tammany Hall has been, until the present Administration in Washington, a local disorder, confined to the City of New York.

How do you, fellow countrymen, like to see it take on national proportions and spread its stain and corruption over every State in the Union?

THIS IS PRECISELY WHAT IS HAPPENING UNDER YOUR VERY EYES.

* * *

THE formula is the same, the methods are identical, the ingredients of the new NATIONAL Tammany are the same as those of the local New York Tammany, viz., the corrupt use of public funds and the corrupt appointment of hangers-on and sycophants to public office in exchange for the votes which, it has been shown, this double-barreled corruption can buy.

Will Americans continue to submit to Farleyism, or will they stamp it out before its tentacles have spread over the face of the nation and made THE CAPITOL at Washington merely an ENLARGED TAMMANY HALL?

Bible Text: "Come now let us reason together, saith Jehovah, though your sins be as scarlet they shall be as white as snow."—Isaiah I. 17. Suggested by the Rev. Carl F. Schultz, pastor of the Federated Church in Hyannis.
